BIG LOSSES IN GIANT CLASH

Germans Smashing Away on Both Sides of Meuse; 150,000 Dead or Wounded in French Lines

London, April 11.—More than 36,000 prisoners have been captured by the Germans on the Verdun front since the great battle for the French fortress opened fifty-one days ago.

Official announcement of the number of prisoners taken was made today through the Overseas News Agency.

It is estimated by German military critics that the French have lost nearly 150,000 men in killed and wounded.

West of the Meuse River about twenty-five square kilometres of territory has been captured.

German newspapers now point out that the French report having evacuated Bethincourt, "according to a previous plan." However, in this connection they refer to an order found upon a French officer, which says:

"This important place, Bethincourt, must be held under all circumstances."

The fact that more than 700 unwounded prisoners were taken and many more than that were killed or wounded is proof that the French plan of evacuation could not have been perfectly carried out.

THROWN BACK, SAYS PARIS.

The French official report today says that attacks with liquid fire were launched by the Germans last night

Three More Liners Sunk by Submarines

London, April 11.—Three more vessels have been blown up by submarines. The British steamship Ellaston has been sunk by a German submarine. The crew were picked up and landed today. The Ellaston was unarmed. The lost steamship, a vessel of 1,296 tons, was last reported as having sailed from Philadelphia for Queenstown.

The Italian steamer Unione has been torpedoed, according to Lloyds. The Unione plied between Italian and South American ports. The steamer displaced 2,367 tons, was built in 1895 and hailed from Spezia.

The Danish steamer Caledonia, 1,815 tons, has been blown up in the Mediterranean by an Austrian submarine, it was announced today from Copenhagen.

LATEST WAR BULLETINS

Rome, April 11.—The Italian government has recalled to the colors cavalrymen of the class of 1890, field artillerymen of the classes of 1892 and 1893, mounted artillerymen of the classes of 1882, 1883, 1884, 1885 and 1886, and all territorials belonging to the cavalry, artillery and engineering divisions of the classes of 1882 to 1885 inclusive. They are to report April 16.

The Hague, April 11.—Dutch foreign office was assured today by the French minister that neither France nor any of the other allied nations has any intention of violating Holland's neutrality.

London, April 11.—A Reuter dispatch from Teheran, capital of Persia, states that the British vice-consul at Lingeh, in Southern Persia, and his two brothers have been assassinated by German agents.

London, April 11.—A wireless dispatch from Rome states that half of the army mobilized by Greece will be temporarily released from service.

GET GERMANY'S REPLY ON SUSSEX

Washington, April 11.—The German government's reply to the American inquiries regarding the steamship Sussex and four other vessels which have been sunk or damaged, was delivered today to the American Embassy at Berlin.

For more than two hours the President and Cabinet discussed the submarine situation. The question of what action this government could take in face of the German denial of responsibility for any attack on the channel steamer Sussex was thoroughly canvassed.

Although the text of the German note was not at hand, the outline of it was reflected in the message sent by Ambassador Gerard and communicated to Secretary Lansing by Count von Bernstorff yesterday was thoroughly discussed.

It was agreed that there had been little improvement in the general situation, but until all of the information now en route to this country is in possession of the President and State Department no action would be taken, an official said.

"The situation remains serious," one Cabinet official said, "and we see little chance for improvement."

Despite the German responsibility for any attack on the channel steamer Sussex, Cabinet members insisted that the entire weight of evidence before them today indicated that the steamer was torpedoed by a submarine.

SHOOT GERMAN SPY IN LONDON

London, April 11.—Another German spy was executed in the Tower of London today. He was the twelfth put to death since the war began. The War Office issued the following statement announcing the execution: "A prisoner charged with espionage was tried by court-martial on March 26, found guilty and sentenced to death. The sentence was carried out this morning."

NEW PLEA BY MISS GARMONG

Woman Suing Clubman Henderson Testifies He Helped Her to Select Name of Her Child

Bangor, Me., April 11.—"Felicia," meaning Happiness, was the pet name decided on by Miss Leona Elizabeth Garmong and John B. Henderson for her baby, according to the woman's testimony in her $250,000 breach of promise suit today.

She declared that they named the child together, the formal cognomen being Mary Newton Foote Henderson, after her mother.

The statement was made by Miss Garmong in connection with an absolute denial that sums of money paid to her by Henderson were for the purpose of keeping her out of his path.

"The money Mr. Henderson gave me," Miss Garmong said, "was given for the care of the baby and for my own support. Why, we even named the baby together and we had a pet name for her, Felicia, meaning Happiness. The formal name we agreed upon was Mary Newton Foote Henderson, after my mother."

Miss Garmong was somewhat hard to handle as a witness, but proved more tractable than during her first appearance on the stand. She declared today that the only time she ever used profane language while rooming at the Washington house of Mrs. Florence Davis was when she was annoyed because of uncleanly conditions.

QUOTES FROM LETTER.

TECH STUDENTS GUILTY OF THEFT

Two Tech students, Charles H. Wesley of Newbury street, Back Bay, and William C. McDonald of Palmer, were in the Municipal Court today charged with larceny of a thermometer from an unknown person. It was also testified that they took a barber's sign from a shop on Huntington avenue. The two students were arrested at an early hour this morning. Judge Murray found them guilty and placed their case on file.

MORE PAY IN EFFECT MONDAY

Employes of American Woolen Company and Arlington Mills to Benefit; Other Mills May Act

An increase of wages, in most cases of 10 per cent., goes into effect Monday for the employes of the American Woolen Company, 25,000 in number, and the Arlington Mills, 7,000 or more.

Similar increase will undoubtedly follow for the textile operators through Eastern New England.

The American Woolen Company today announced the increase in wages for all its employes to date from April 17.

The action came as a surprise, although strikes and threatened strikes in various mills had made it inevitable, and the big business being done by the various mills made such an increase possible.

About 25,000 employes of the American Woolen Company are affected by the increase.

Lawrence will benefit most by the increase, as there are over 10,000 employes of the company in that city.

The official announcement issued by the company read as follows:

COMPANY'S STATEMENT.

A general increase of wages is announced by the American Woolen Company to go into effect in all its plants April 17. This increase on the American Woolen Company's mills have been shaped to give the lower paid help the greatest addition to their compensation.

It is believed by the management that these previous increases have fairly equalized the compensation of employes; therefore, the increase that will go into effect April 17 will take the form of a 10 per cent. advance.

Directors of the Arlington Mills operation met today and at the close of the meeting announced general advance for the 7,000 operatives. No fixed rate of wage raise announced, but it will equal the advance the competitors, officials of company say.

Leaders in the textile industries predict that action by the American Woolen and the Arlington companies will be followed by a similar course in mill men throughout New England.

In the Arlington mills, 7,000 operatives have been idle as the result of strike of 350 finishers who went out Friday.

It is thought that announcement of wages increase will end the strike.

Waite, Broken in Nerve, Under Vigilant Guard to Prevent His Suicide

Dr. Arthur Warren Waite (on left), in custody of Detective Gallagher, on the way from the Tombs to court.

New York, April 11.—Weak and shaken, his nervous system a wreck, Dr. Arthur Warren Waite lay in a cell in the Tombs today, while a guard watched outside the door to see that he did not attempt self-destruction.

Shaken by his experience in being photographed and measured at police headquarters yesterday, his nervous condition was such that it was thought best to keep him under guard.

Waite, who has denied himself to every one but his brother Frank and counsel, Samuel Untermyer, had a conference in a cell located between those occupied by Frank Tuttle, the alleged slayer of Herman Rosenthal, and Harry Vallon, the alleged slayer of Hyman Horowitz, who was killed in a gambling house on Forty-third street on April 12, and by Harry Vallon, the first Monroe in May 1909, who killed Lieut. Charles Stanton.

The theory that the prisoner will plead insanity in his defense was strengthened by his behavior when being taken from Bellevue to police headquarters. While passing through the alcoholic ward, under escort of Detectives John Daniff and Frank Gallagher, Waite turned to the former and remarked in apparent surprise:

"This place seems like a hospital. Am I in a hospital?"

BANDIT HIT IN ATTACK ON GIRL

Father of Mexican Beauty Shoots Villa; 16 Arrests Are Made in Plot Inquiry on the Border

Queretaro, Mexico, April 10, via Galveston, Tex., April 11.—Rumors, as yet unconfirmed, reached the Mexican War Office here today that Francisco Villa was killed in the last fight with Carvanzistas near the town of Cienegilla. Villa's men, according to the rumor, were carrying his body as they continued their flight to the south.

War Minister Obregon at once wired the commanding officer at Chihuahua asking for a confirmation of the report or a denial, but up to the time of sending this dispatch no reply had been received. The rumor, however, created a deep impression here.

El Paso, April 11.—The manner in which Francisco Villa received the summons from which he is suffering—and which is now reported to be infected—became known here today for the first time. The outlaw was shot and wounded by the father of a Mexican girl who was defending his daughter from Villa's attentions.

The father was killed. The fate of the girl still remains to be told.

New Haven, April 11.—Earthquake shocks were recorded on the Yale seismograph, it is reported, this morning between 4 and 5 o'clock. The first three shocks were recorded at 4:30, 4:45 and 4:55 a. m., and ended at 11:45 p. m.

MAYOR'S WIFE IS ASSESSED BY CITY

Mary E. Curley, wife of Mayor Curley, was assessed $542 today in betterments on account of land on Sterling street, in locality on which to build "Jamaica Way Villas," the new boulevard to the shore. Monday street will be built without any money being paid for damages and with $11,617 being assessed to property owners in betterments.

GERMANS TAKE 36,000 MEN IN VERDUN FIGHT

on both sides of the Meuse River in the sector of Verdun. These attacks were thrown back with heavy losses except on the western slope of Le Mort Homme (Dead Man's Hill), northwest of Verdun, where the Germans were able to occupy a few trenches.

South of Douaumont, northeast of Verdun, the Crown Prince again hurled his hordes against the French lines, but they were repulsed. On the Douaumont-Vaux front the German guns concentrated a terrific fire against the French positions.

Despite German claims, continues the Paris report, the French still hold the crest of the much disputed Dead Man's Hill. The trenches which the Germans captured on Sunday on Hill 295 are nearly one-half a mile from the summit of Le Mort Homme.

French military critics express the belief that there is little doubt that the real offensive began against the French positions on Verdun on Sunday. The assaults, which have been under way since Saturday, it is believed, may be regarded as the final drive.

LEVEL AVOCOURT FORTS.

According to the French War Office, the new French front lies from the southern corner of Avocourt forest along the first slopes of Hill No. 304 to the southern slopes of Forges Brook, to the north of Malancourt; thence eastward and south of the point where the Bethincourt-Esnes road and the Bethincourt-Chattancourt road cross, and north of Cumieres to the Meuse River.

As reported by the German office the fortifications of the village of Avocourt, south of Avocourt forest, were destroyed by the German guns.

Methodically but with the certainty of a well-regulated machine, the Germans are smashing their way forward on both sides of the Meuse and, to borrow an expression of a French general, they are "nibbling" their way into Verdun.

Fresh troops are continually being sent to the front to relieve the veterans who have played their part in previous storm assaults.

A division and a half of reinforcements has just been sent to the Malancourt front to take up the drive against Hill 304, which, now has a modified salient in the German line.

NETWORK OF DEFENCE.

Hundreds of German guns of big calibre are playing upon the French positions on Hill 304 and south of Le Mort Homme (Dead Man's Hill), where the French troops are protected by a series of elaborate field works, consisting of redoubts, blockhouses, heavy parapets, resting upon rows of barbed wire entanglements in chevaux de frises.

Hundreds of trees were felled by the French and left lying with their tops toward the direction from which the Germans must advance. The branches were carefully sharpened to points with axes to impale the troops as they charged.

All these defences have to be shattered by the Germans.

FRENCH OFFICIAL REPORT.

The text of the French official communique follows:

"On the left bank of the Meuse the Germans launched yesterday evening against our positions at Le Mort Homme an attack accompanied by the throwing of liquid fire. The attack, which debouched from Cumieres wood, was driven back by our curtains of fire and our rifle fire, except at on the east, where the enemy gained a foothold in some small trench elements.

"On the right bank of the Meuse the Germans attempted during the night to drive us from the trenches which we had taken during recent days to the south of the village of Douaumont. Their attack here was unsuccessful accompanied by throwing of liquid fire. It suffered a sanguinary repulse.

"There was a violent bombardment in the Douaumont-Vaux region. Some artillery engagements were noted in the Woevre district. The night was quiet on the rest of the front.

"This morning one of our pilots brought down a German aeroplane, which fell within our lines near Badonviller. The two aviators were killed by the fall."

GERMAN OFFICIAL REPORT.

Following is the complete text of the German official report:

"West front—The English, after increasing their artillery fire south of St. Eloi (West Flanders), made strong right attacks, with hand grenades, all of which failed. We hold all the ground which we had previously occupied in that district.

"In the Argonne, near Fille Morte and Hauquois, the French exploded several mines, but they only succeeded in damaging their own trenches.

"There was very active fighting on both sides of the Meuse yesterday. French counter attacks against positions south of Forges Brook and against our new line between Haucourt and Bethincourt, all broke down with heavy losses.

"The number of unwounded French prisoners in our hands has been increased to twenty-two officers and 1,231 men. We also captured in the region two cannon and twenty-two machine guns.

"South of Corbeaux Wood (Crow Wood), west of the Meuse, we captured some more blockhouses in night attacks, taking 222 prisoners and one machine gun.

TAKE MORE PRISONERS.

"Counter-assaults from the region of Chattoncourt were checked by the efficient flanking fire of the German guns on the east side of the river.

"On the right bank of the Meuse (the eastern side) the enemy tried in vain to reconquer lost ground south of Pouvre (Dupuy?) hill. Southwest of Douaumont the enemy was forced to abandon further defensive positions, where we captured some dozens of prisoners and three machine guns.

"Southwest of Ypres, two more allied aeroplanes have been shot down by our high angle guns."

WERNER HORN IN PORTSMOUTH JAIL

Losing weight and unable to get enough exercise at the East Cambridge jail, Lieutenant Werner Horn of the German army, dynamiter of the international bridge at Vanceboro, Me., was today, on request of his counsel, former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, taken to the Plymouth County jail by United States Deputy Marshals Tighe and Bradley.

"Lieutenant Horn has not been in the best of health lately," said Attorney O'Connell, "and I petitioned the court to transfer him to the Plymouth County Jail. The jail in East Cambridge is too crowded and Lieutenant Horn could not get enough exercise. He will have ample opportunity in the Plymouth County Jail, which is not so crowded, to stimulate his appetite."

WAR SUMMARY

What may be called the Second Battle of Verdun, which began last week, has reached an intensity without precedent, today's dispatches indicate, and the French lines are withering under the most tremendous cannonade in history.

The French today admitted the loss of several trenches on Dead Man's Hill.

The German attempt is to wipe out the French salient, roughly triangular in shape, and with Avocourt as the southwest corner, a point on Forges Brook north of Hill 304 as the north corner, and Cumieres as the eastern corner. If the Germans succeed in forcing the French back to a line running through Avocourt, Esnes and Chattancourt to the Meuse, Verdun may be expected to fall.

That is the significance of the present fighting. The task of the Germans, however, is but just begun. If they are to succeed it will hardly be within a week, and may not be within a month. Until they succeed, Verdun is safe.

A French staff officer, in a dispatch from Paris, refers to the operations as an effort to take "Le Mort Homme, in order to render untenable the key sector of Pepper Hill and Douaumont." Thus the vital significance of the fighting is admitted from both sides.

A statement from Berlin today gave us a line on total losses, estimating the French total loss at 150,000, and stating that 36,000 French prisoners have been taken. Paris has put the German loss at 200,000. It is probable that both these figures are approximately correct.

Premier Asquith has replied to Chancellor Bethmann-Hollweg's peace terms. He makes two statements of real significance: (1) that "we are not defeated, we are not going to be defeated," and that (2) what he means by the destruction of the military domination of Prussia is the development of a situation where the German people will not be dictated to in affairs of state by the Prussian military caste, "nothing more, but nothing less."

This is actually a recession from his previously asserted determination to crush Germany, strangle her, destroy her navy and her military power. It is a concession; and as such, it brings peace negotiations so much nearer.

The Russian official report deals with minor matters in Poland and the Caucasus, and does not mention Persia. But Russia's occupation of that undefended country—flanking India—continues; and when, after the war, England requests Russia to withdraw from this soil, there may be trouble between the present allies.

The Austrians claim gains; so does Rome; and London and Berlin are similarly in conflict as to the fighting about St. Eloi.

There is a strong possibility that if the Verdun fighting continues for another seven weeks or longer, the opposing armies may be so reduced in size that we will see a resumption of open field warfare, instead of the present trench fighting. A victory for either side is impossible so long as the weaker party can defend a continuous line of trenches; and if the war is to end in victory for one side or the other, it will only be after field operations are resumed. There are indications such a state of affairs may come to pass this Summer.

RUSH REINFORCEMENTS TO GEN. PERSHING

here from Carrizaletta sources today infection of this wound may cause Villa's death. The wound was aggravated by lack of medical attention.

The account of the way Villa received the wound it only one more chapter in the brutal and bloody history of the outlaw fugitives.

The case dates back to the Villa raids upon Guerrero and Minaca, where foreigners were murdered. News of the murders was brought here by George Locke, who kept a livery stable at Minaca.

Villa, fresh from his easy victory at Guerrero, descended on Minaca in a day's need. He swaggered into town at the head of his Dorados (bodyguard), gleeful at the memory of how he had forced General Cavazos and his staff to leap from a banquet half-eaten and flee before his attack.

Sympathizers told him that fresh mounts were to be had at the stables of Locke. They were badly needed. Within half of his men Villa went to the stables to find Locke had left only buildings in charge of his caretaker, Andreas Rehaza. In a nearby adobe but was Rehaza's pretty young daughter, Adelita, and also a big broad-shouldered fellow, stood in the doorway as Villa approached, barring the way.

"Do not fear, Amigo," grinned Villa. "I kill only Gringos and false ones. Why do you bar the door?"

At this moment Adelita, her girlish curiosity overcoming her fear of the famous Pancho Villa, peeped around the corner.

Villa caught the frightened black eyes of the girl. Once more he grinned. Then he strode away.

Within an hour he returned accompanied by two of his "golden ones." Again Rehaza barred the door.

ACCUSES REHAZA.

"Andreas Rehaza, you have been false to Pancho Villa," he snarled. "You are withholding from him treasure that should be his."

"No, my Generale," he cried, "there is no treasure in my poor house but that which God has given me to cherish."

Villa turned to his men. He gave a signal. They sprang on the big countryman and pulled him from the doorway. Villa still grinning entered the room. Adelita screamed.

"Now, we shall see how traitors are punished!" cried Villa as he reappeared dragging the screaming girl by the arm.

The screams of the daughter drove Rehaza into a frenzy of rage. Villa stood by grinning as the three men struggled. With a seemingly superhuman effort Rehaza fought one arm free. His hand automatically clutched a gun from the holster of one of his tormentors. He levelled it at the tall smiling Villa.

Just as he pulled the trigger, one of his antagonists struck his arm downward and the bullet clipped Pancho Villa's knee instead of his heart. The coachman fled from Villa.

Villa screamed with rage: "Kill that dog!"

Rehaza was thrown heavily to the ground and as he lay there held by one of the men, the other took the revolver from the ground pressed it against his temple and fired.

VILLA HOLDS GIRL.

Villa, in the doorway, held the fainting girl that she might see her father killed.

Here history ends. Nothing is known of the fate of Adelita.

In Villa's rapid flight southward the wound in his knee, slight at first, became worse until now the report of grave infection has arrived here from Carranzista sources.

It is known that similar reports have reached General Pershing, commander of the American expedition, but he has sent no official confirmation in his message to the border. The Carranzistas have sources of information that the American troops do not have.

News from the American troops in Southern Chihuahua was lacking today and interest on the border centred in the situation at Columbus, N. M., and in the hunt for General Jose Ynes Salazar, the professional Mexican rebel, who disappeared from El Paso two days ago and was last reported as crossing the border not far from this city.

Secret service agents for both the American and Carranzista governments are trying to trace Salazar and learn his plans.

Sixteen arrests were made during the night in connection with the Salazar investigation, but several of the prisoners were released as soon as they had furnished a satisfactory account. Among those taken into custody were General Marcelo Caraveo, formerly an ardent aid to the late Pasqual Orozco, and Eliseo Baca, Salazar's personal attorney.

They are said to have recently switched their allegiance to Felix Diaz, and it is reported that Diaz is financing Salcazar with his own personal funds.

Chances of Villa's Capture Dwindle.

By International News Service.

Washington, April 11.—There was every indication in War Department circles today that immediate reinforcements would be sent into Mexico to strengthen General Pershing's forces in pursuit of Pancho Villa.

The news that Villa and his bandits had eluded their American pursuers and dashed fifty miles ahead into Durango added to the grave concern felt by army officers.

It was realized that more and more of General Pershing's command must be withheld from the head of the column to guard the all-important line of communications.

With Villa now fifty miles ahead of his pursuers and General Pershing unable to place much dependence upon the Mexican railroads in maintaining his communications loosened reports declared today that the chances of running down the outlaw with the present American forces daily grow more remote.

General Scott, chief of staff, stated today that there are left along the border approximately 18,500 troops. As the number stationed along the border and sent there since the chase for Villa began was about 30,000 it is believed there are about 12,000 now in Mexico. By far the largest part of those are guarding the line of communication between Columbus, N. M., and General Pershing's field bases.

The next step probably will be to withdraw some of the American forces now patrolling the Mexican border and send them down through Chihuahua, to strengthen Pershing's ever-lengthening lines.

2 ARRESTS REVEAL 131 FOR GIRL'S DEATH

Houlton, Me., April 11.—Mrs. Matilda [illegible] and "Reddie" Armstrong were arrested today in the investigation into the death of Miss Grace Laskey at Mrs. Perkins' home on Sunday, April 9. Armstrong put up a fight, but was overpowered.

The arrest of Mrs. Perkins was more technical than literal, because she was already in the county jail on a liquor selling charge.

Sheriff Bryson and County Attorney Archibald secured the warrants at 10 a. m. Armstrong, who lived at Mrs. Perkins' house, was located on Bangor street by Deputy Sheriff Guion.

While Medical Examiner Jackson reported the cause of the girl's death to be exposure the autopsy revealed a large amount of alcohol in that girl's stomach. She had apparently been without food for two days. The girl's mother refused at first to believe that the victim was her daughter, saying: "There is another Grace Laskey in Houlton." The mother was taken to Frank Dunn's undertaking rooms where she admitted the identity.

The mother said later:

"I have tried to keep Grace from Mattie Perkins' home but she seemed possessed to go there. She left home Friday in good spirits. The news of her death was a shock I shall never forget."

Mrs. Perkins said today:

"Grace Laskey came to my house Sunday morning at 5:30. She wanted to stay until daylight. When I let her in she began to dance around, saying: 'Mattie, I feel awful good. I don't know what's the matter with me. I feel like dancing all the time.' I told her to sit down. I thought she acted queer.

"She said she must be under the influence of liquor, and I think I got her to bed on a cot. I let her sleep. At noon I called her. She did not answer. I shook her hard. Her head rolled over. Her eyes were wide open, glossy and staring. I screamed to my daughter, Rosie: 'My God, Grace is dead!' She must have been dead some hours."

HELD IN PROVIDENCE ON ROBBERY CHARGE

Providence, April 11.—Found by the police in a subterranean cellar today at No. 54 Broadway with jewelry, revolver and blackjack in his possession, William Owens, eighteen, of Mayfield, Pa., said by the police to be a deserter from the navy training ship Newport, is charged with breaking and entering. Owens said he enlisted from Scranton, Pa., and deserted February 15; after serving four months. Miss Sadie Foley, No. 13 White street, Hartford, claimed part of the jewelry taken by Owens.

INVESTIGATE FIRE IN REVERE HOUSE

The officials of the Revere fire department started an investigation of a fire, believed to be of incendiary origin, which broke out early today in an unoccupied two-story wooden dwelling, No. 573 Winthrop avenue, Beachmont. The fire started in the bathroom on the second floor, burning through to the roof, and causing damage estimated by the police at $100.

2 HELD IN BATTLE WITH POLICEMAN

Gloucester, April 11.—Oskar Papula and Nestor Hakkaranen were held today for a hearing on Friday on charges of assaulting Patrolman Alpheus G. Melman with a dangerous weapon. While attempting to arrest Papula the policeman says Hakkaranen set upon him. Both men fled, but were captured later. Melman's knife wounds required thirty stitches.

ROOSEVELT IS ON WAY HOME AGAIN

Miss Garmong Declares Henderson Helped Her to Select Baby's Name

Mrs. C. W. Kirk and John P. Garmong of Des Moines, Ia., sister and brother of Leona E. Garmong, whose suit against John B. Henderson is being heard at Bangor.

It was admitted today by counsel for the Curley administration in open court today that out of 171 high pressure hydrants installed in Boston in connection with the long-delayed high pressure system, 131 hydrants leaked.

This cropped out at the hearing in Dorchester court of the cases of Frank A. McInnes, Storrs L. Parker and Bliss W. Robinson, three of the seventeen dismissed officials of the public works department who seek to be reinstated.

The three petitioners claim they were dropped by Mayor Curley in violation of the civil service law, because they refused to attend political meetings or otherwise contribute to the campaign fund or support the Curley City Council slate.

Attorney Joseph H. Lyons of the legal staff of Corporation Counsel John A. Sullivan revealed the condition of hydrants in cross-examining Frank A. McInnes, who, as supervisor of the water and sewer department, had drawn $5,000 annually.

$28,411 FOR EXPERTS.

Attorney Lyons, by his questioning of Mr. McInnes, showed that the city had paid $28,411.80 to engineers for expert advice on the high pressure system, those drawing the expert fees being W. J. Sandow, Milwaukee; Charles W. Goldsmith, New York; W. G. Conard, Newark, N. J., and C. W. Blackall of Boston.

Attorney Lyons—What engine ring mark did you personally fix in connection with the high water pressure?

Mr. McInnes—Prepared plans and specifications and saw to the laying of pipes and selected proper sizes.

Q.—How many high pressure hydrants are there in Boston, Mr. McInnes? A.—I don't know.

Q.—Yet you claim you personally inspected the territory? A.—I did.

Q.—That is part of your official duty did as you claimed, shouldn't you have known that there are 171 high-pressure hydrants in Boston? A.—I got out of that number there was leakage in 131? A.—I had never heard of any such leakage.

Q.—Do you think an organization is good one that has a yearly pay-roll expenditure for experts? A.—Experts are necessary at times.

Q.—How frequently did Mr. Quinn, the engineer, under you, report to you? A.—Infrequently. Sometimes I went to him, and at other times he called on me.

Q.—How many times have you visited the Forest Hills conduit? A.—Eight times.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that ever since the Metropolitan Water Board took control that reservoirs and other water duties of the city of Boston are being handled by the Metropolitan? A.—There is much work to be done by the water department, in the laying of pipes and placing hydrants for reduction of fire hazard.

OBJECTION BY HENDERSON.

Attorney Arthur D. Hill, counsel for the petitioners, objected to Attorney Lyons' line of questions, stating that counsel for the city had admitted yesterday that Mr. McInnes was efficient. Mr. Lyons replied that he wished merely to prove improper organization of the department, but Mr. Hill thought the examination related more to the question of the efficiency of the witness.

In cross-examination by Lyons, Durkee, one of the petitioners, was asked:

Q.—You say that you went out and inspected streets. Is it not the duty of others to report defects in the streets? A.—Yes.

Q.—Why did you do it? A.—I took it upon myself to see that things were right.

Q.—Regarding coal holes and obstruction of areaways and so on, that is up to the police, is it not? A.—Yes.

Q.—Mr. Durkee, you think your position is indispensable to the city, do you not? A.—I think my position a very valuable one to the city and more than I was getting.

PUTS BLAME ON MAYOR.

Mr. Hill offered papers in evidence, including a list of the seventeen men discharged, saying he wished to show that they had not contributed to the last City Council campaign fund. Lyons objected. Hill said:

"The Mayor assumes responsibility for the discharges of these men. We find also that the Mayor stated that McInnes was of no use to the Democratic party. We also find that every one of the seventeen men discharged were those who failed to contribute. We have shown enough that this list is competent to the evidence."

Judge Churchill: "I will allow the list to go in for what it is worth."

EXPLOSION IN EAST BOSTON FACTORY

A hot bolt dropping into an oil tank caused an explosion in the factory of Bertelsen & Petersen, Border street, East Boston, today. The fire department was notified. The damage was slight.

THIEF ESCAPES CHELSEA MAN

Joseph Charksky of No. 75 Arlington street, Chelsea, notified the police today of the larceny of $47 in money and checks amounting to $17. Charksky said he was about to enter his store when he noticed a man leaving by the rear entrance. He gave chase, but the thief escaped.

letter she wrote from Baltimore, while she was a student there, to Roscoe D. Smith, her first sweetheart, she says, back in Iowa.

The date of the letter was June 20, 1908, and the letter, to "My Dear Roscoe," contained these paragraphs: "Thanks for the compliment, dearest, but so far I've had none of that cheap love you once spoke of, and those other elements only belong to the highest attributed to womankind.

"The fact that you have deemed forsaken love is sufficient. If I may ask of your faithfulness, and on the contrary to mine it is untrue, may I then use the limit of my nerve power to satisfy the longing for you with another in your absence?"

This letter had been put in by the defence, and Mr. Fulton wanted to know Mrs. Garmong say exactly what she meant by the paragraph quoted.

The defence objected strenuously, and Justice Bird agreed with them.

Mr. Fulton said that "ordinarily" a letter "speaks for itself," but he thought that, inasmuch as the defence had placed one interpretation upon these words, the plaintiff should be permitted to say exactly what was in her mind when she wrote them.

WANTS TO INTERPRET.

"In justice to this woman," he urged, "I submit that she ought not to be left in this unfortunate position where anybody might be liable to misinterpret the meaning of a phrase used with the thoughtlessness so often shown by young girls when ——" but Justice Bird interrupted.

"Now you are putting your interpretation upon it," he said grimly.

"Well, your honor," answered Mr. Fulton, it seems to me she ought to be given an opportunity ti say what she meant."

"It is my impression," Justice Bird decided, "that that is a question for the jury. I think I will exclude your question, therefore, and leave it for the jury. You may have an exception."

Immediately Miss Garmong became again an almost unmanageable witness.

She wanted a chance to "interpret."

She fussed "quite some," remaining, however, just within the line beyond which she might be forced Justice Bird to take judicial notice of her tantrums.

Fulton sat down, and L. B. Deasy, Henderson's senior counsel, arose with a few Roscoe D. Smith questions and a few more about Dr. Hoe, the Washington physician, who last week was an anti-Garmong witness.

TILTS WITH COUNSEL.

For a minute or two Miss Garmong wasn't going to remember Roscoe D., then she said "yes, she knew him." He was "a fat man."

"A fat man?" asked Mr. Deasy.

"A handsomer man than you are," said Miss Garmong, and the court room enjoyed a little unrehuked and then laughed aloud when Deasy, getting along toward sixty, flushed collared, smooth shaven, sharp featured, with a way of looking over his spectacles instead of through them, quite as if he were playing a Way Down East part to a William T. Hodge show, said, almost enviously, "He must have been a beauty."

Miss Garmong can neither forget nor forgive Mrs. Florence Davis, the Washington dressmaker, who "let romance" back in 1910-11 and to whose house Miss Garmong went, carrying little Mary in a suit case.

Mrs. Davis had testified that almost from the beginning, though mother and baby remained five months, Miss Garmong's presence was objectionable because she roamed about the house half-dressed and "would" use objectionable language.

Dr. Hoe is the Davis family physician. Mrs. Davis, a really handsome woman despite her size, weighs 225 pounds or so.

So, when Deasy asked today, on the subject of the physician's standing, "——" Dr. Hoe has a "large" practice, Miss Garmong said she [illegible] know, but supposed so.

"He must have 'large' practice," she added, "if he is Mrs. Davis' physician."

Poultry Dealer Found Guilty of Cruelty to Hens

Twenty-five hens were jammed into a crate only 13 by 29 inches and the crate slats bulged out from the pressure of the living poultry, according to testimony given in the city court today against Moses Bloom and Joseph Moran.

Bloom is a poultry dealer at No. 37 Fulton street. Moran works for him. They did not crate the hens. They were sent to them by train. Moran accused them at the train yard and brought them to Bloom's store on Bloom's wagon. Having the crated poultry in their possession, the employer and employe were found guilty in city court today of cruelty to animals on charges brought by Agent Horace B. Fuller of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The case was continued to tomorrow for disposition.

Judge Murray recommended that Horace follow up the case and find who crated and sent the hens.

Glover Widow Is Witness in Note Dispute

Mrs. Lillian Glover Delmar, widow of Clarence Glover, the murdered Waltham laundryman, took the witness stand in the Superior Civil Court at East Cambridge today, and identified her first husband's signature on a note for $6,150.

This note was held by William A. LeBlanc of Waverley, a brother of Mrs. Delmar, who put it in as a claim against the estate, of which Samuel D. Elmore is executor.

The Commissioners of Insolvency in the Probate Court disallowed the note, and LeBlanc appealed, the case coming before Judge Fessenden and a jury.

Mrs. Delmar testified that she also signed the note, but that when she protested her husband erased her name.

OLMSTEAD IN COURT PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Irving E. Olmstead of Newton was in court today on a charge of murdering Mrs. Violet C. Mowers in her manicure parlor on Winter street, March 13. He pleaded not guilty. Harvey H. Pratt was appointed by Judge Hardy to defend him.

WOMAN HELD ON POLYGAMY CHARGE

Anna Young was arrested today on a polygamy charge and held in $1,000 as a result of the annulment suit filed by Joseph E. Ferreira, whom the police say she married without having been freed from her first husband, Daniel Young.

ROXBURY MEN IN WEEK'S RETREAT

"Unto Dust Thou Shalt Return" will be the subject of the sermon tonight of the Rev. Thomas H. Miley, S. J., of Boston College, at the retreat which he is giving this week in St. Patrick's Church, Roxbury, for the men of the parish.

PENALTY OF DEATH OPPOSED

Mrs. Jessie J. Storrow, wife of the Boston City Councillor and sister of Thomas Riley, counsel recent warrior of Sinn Fein fame, vigorously opposed Governor McCall's recommendation for the abolition of capital punishment today at the public hearing before the Joint Judiciary Committee at the State House.

Mrs. Storrow declared that the revengeful plea of "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," is punishment for the individual criminal, but that it is not the whole criminal. It actually serves as a deterrent to crime. It is her opinion capital punishment is a slight, if any, deterrent whatever.

It should be the broad policy of society to restrain the criminal until the best means for his improvement for crime, she said. When his improvement is apparent in the authorities competent to judge him the criminal should be given opportunity to rehabilitate himself.

"We are a wasteful nation," she declared, "and we should be concerned in the waste of human life. We should not make scrap of human life that could be made an asset rather than a liability to the State."

Asked if under any circumstance life should be taken as a payment for murder, Mrs. Storrow replied:

TREASON AN EXCEPTION.

"I sorry you ask the question. I am thinking of treason. My patriotism is keenly alive at this time. Perhaps I feel that treason should be punished in that way."

This statement was loudly applauded.

The hearing on the Governor's measure attracted an audience not well filled the committee room. A majority present were women. Abolition of capital punishment was urged also by Mrs. Florence G. Spooner, representing the Anti-Death Penalty League, Herbert L. Baker and Mrs. Carolyn Hitchcock, among others. The opposition came principally from the Massachusetts Civic Alliance.

"Our contribution should be not so much for the punishment of crime, but for the prevention of crime in the future," said Mrs. Storrow.

"Fear of the death penalty doesn't affect the drunkard who commits crimes. Murders are the result of impulse. The principal crimes are the drunken and joyous murder. Murderers are not all deficients. No jurist or jury can know that a criminal is not capable of improvement.

HEAR MRS. SPOONER.

"Some of you are too young to remember the notoriety that attended the murder of President Garfield. That was delayed with flowers after the crime. The same sense of notoriety prevails today."

Mrs. Spooner read a long list of prominent men who favor abolition of the death penalty, she said, among them Cardinal O'Connell, Bishop Lawrence, Bishop Brent, Nathaniel Thayer, Paul Revere Frothingham, Rev. William H. van Allen, Rev. A. Z. Conrad, former Governor Foss, former Governor Foss and former Governor Winslow Warren. She read a letter from Mrs. Curley, who said: "I am in hearty accord with Governor McCall. This is not a political question but a common sense and humanity."

"The death penalty is legalized murder," said Mrs. Hitchcock. "We all agree on the commandment, 'Thou Shalt Not Kill.'"

OPPOSITION HEARD.

Mr. Baker said that in the States where the death penalty was more often imposed, the murders were more frequent than in States that had abolished capital punishment.

Representative Fred P. Greenwood of Everett, who joined in the petition, said that the Legislature had already expressed itself in favor of capital punishment.

"Murderers are going out of jail in this State faster than they are going in," he said. He quoted statistics to show that more men were pardoned each year than were convicted of murder.

TRAP MAN ABOUT TO FIRE FACTORY

Lawrence, April 11.—Caught in the act, the police say, of applying a match to a quantity of oil he poured down a chute and over some packing cases in the Beach soap factory at 1:30 a. m. today, Edward Linnehan, 2, of South Lawrence, pleaded guilty to a charge of "attempting to burn" in court today. He was bound over to the Grand Jury sitting in Newburyport. His case will be heard tomorrow.

To John Gardner, the watchman of the factory, is due the fact that the factory was not burned. He heard a noise, and saw Linnehan pour the oil. Just as Linnehan was about to apply the match he caught sight of Gardner.

A watchman jumped for Linnehan, but the latter dropped from a second story window to a roof, then jumped eighteen feet to the ground, scaled a fence and ran down Law-rence street, with Gardner on his heels.

Patrolman Gallagher was just turning a corner when Linnehan ran into his arms. Linnehan was locked up, later, it is said, he confessed to Chief Officer Finn.

MOTOR SUPERVISOR WANTED BY CITY

A competitive examination of applicants for the position of supervisor of motor apparatus in the service of the Boston Fire Department, the post recently authorized by the city, will be held on May 3, according to the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission. The position carries a salary of $1,500 a year. Only citizens of the United States who have been residents of Massachusetts for the past year are eligible. Blanks may be secured from the Civil Service Commission, Room 151, State House.

AMERICAN COUNTESS SUICIDE

Thirty Horses Rescued at Fire in Charlestown

Fire, which threatened several wooden dwellings and stables, was discovered early today on the second floor of a threatening building, formerly occupied by P. A. Trefrey as the Bunker Hill carriage Manufactory, at Nos. 8 to 16 Mutual street, Charlestown. Two alarms were sounded.

When the firemen arrived crowds of flames were pouring from the windows on the second and third floors. Acting District Chief Cassidy immediately ordered a second alarm sounded. In the meantime neighbor-hood in the burning building are located the stables of H. B. Lyman, G. J. Howard and the James stables. Thirty horses in the three stables were led to safety by policemen and firemen.

Firemen described how the had gained the command about 1:30 a. m.

TWO ARE MISSING FROM EAST BOSTON

The East Boston police have been asked to search for two persons who are missing. They are Mrs. Mary Perkins, who lives at No. 161 Meridian street, and Sarah Parshall, fourteen, of Model place. The woman is described as about five feet tall, weighs 150 pounds, dark complexion, dark brown hair and eyes. The boy has dark hair and eyes and wore blue overalls and dark coat and cap.

500 PAPERMAKERS STRIKE; CLOSE MILLS

Fitchburg, April 11.—Five mills of the Smith Paper Company in Leominster and Lunenburg were closed today as a result of the strike of papermakers, which was declared last night after conferences had failed to settle the differences between the company and the union. The strike affects 500 men. The mills will remain closed indefinitely.

NICHOLSON MAY BE BAKER'S AID

Washington, April 11.—President Wilson is actively considering the appointment of Herbert Nicholson, now secretary, as Assistant Secretary of War. Mr. Nicholson could have been appointed to the post but he declined in order to continue his foreign missions. He is considered a close friend of Secretary Baker and it is thought he would accept the position if his assistance.

WAR VETERANS AT MEALEY FUNERAL

Civil war veterans and city employes attended the funeral in South Boston today of Colonel Hugh Mealey, organizer and commander of Gettysburg Post 2, Grand Army Veterans' Union. High mass of requiem was celebrated at noon of Heaven Church by the Rev. Daniel J. Dacey. Colonel Mealey was employed in the Water Department of the city. Burial was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Dorchester.

AUTHORESS TRIED FOR FRAUD

[illegible] Authoress, who lives in Roxbury street, went on trial today in the Dorchester court on [illegible] charges preferred under complaints from Mrs. Frederick Hemenway of Beacon street.

Mrs. Hemenway and Rev. Robert A. Johnson, pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church, and Miss Lydia Vera Wyman, dancing teacher, were among the witnesses summoned in the case.

The trial had been postponed for some time. Mrs. Rose while Mrs. Alvarado was examined in the Psychopathic Hospital, and later while search was made for Mrs. Elinora F. Stearns, a New Bedford stenographer said authoress, who, her husband claimed, was [illegible] in a Dorchester house.

Mrs. Valentine has not been located since Mrs. Judge Talmer ordered the trial to begin, and Mrs. Holbrook took the stand and told of giving considerable sums of money to Mrs. Glendon.

She came to me first in October [illegible] said Mrs. Holbrook. "She said [illegible] and that her husband was [illegible] and I gave her $100 to pay her rent.

"Three days later she came again and I gave her $50. Later she got $25 more in November, December 15 I went to the house and she wrote me asking me to send borrowed $250 from a friend and he wanted his money right away. I gave her $200 to pay the friend and for her current expenses.

"She told me some of her manuscripts had been stolen. She brought me one to read and I read a little of it and gave it back."

Three days later she came again and Mrs. Holbrook gave her $50 after promising to see F. Moore of the Boston Herald about getting her a position as a reporter.

Mrs. Holbrook described how she had given the woman another $50 or $60.

TWO ARE MARRIED

Miss Mary Ellen Dolan, daughter of Mrs. Mary Dolan of 1 Ashland street, Dorchester, and Joseph Francis Dolan, son of Mrs. Mary Dolan of 1 Ashland street, Dorchester, were married this morning at 9 o'clock in St. Peter's Church by the Rev. Father Dolan. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Margaret Dolan, and the bridegroom by his brother, Thomas Dolan. After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's mother, Mr. and Mrs. Dolan left on a trip to Washington, D. C., and other points. They will reside at 1 Ashland street.

In Making

honest whole wheat flour and malted barley are blended, made into dough, moulded into loaves, and baked. The loaves are then sliced and baked a second time—in all about twenty hours of thorough baking.

Grape-Nuts possesses all the rich, nourishing elements of the grains, including the vital mineral salts so necessary for vigorous mental and physical activity. Many foods lack these essential elements—especially is this true of white bread and white flour products, because in making flour white most of the energizing mineral salts of the grain are thrown out in the milling process.

With Grape-Nuts it is different, for all the nutriment of the grain is retained. Then the long baking renders the food easily and quickly digestible.

Always ready to serve direct from its sanitary, tight-sealed carton, Grape-Nuts is in the form of granules of tender crispness that have a delicious, nutlike flavor. Four teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts with a little cream alongside is a splendid, well-balanced part of any meal and gives a wonderful return in sturdy brain, nerve and muscle.

"There's a Reason"

Grocers everywhere sell Grape-Nuts.

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were irregular in New York at noon, there having been no change of consequence in the market as a whole during the morning. Trading was of limited volume. U. S. Smelting sold at 76¾, a new highest record price. Zincs were fairly active and sagged. Coppers were not as strong as a group by midday as they had been earlier. Crucible Steel was an active war industrial. Railroads were inactive.

Gains at 12 o'clock included American Sugar 1¾, Car and Foundry ¾, American Locomotive ¾, Studebaker ¾, Colorado Fuel ¾, Crucible Steel 1¾, Maxwell ¾, Studebaker ¾, Utah Copper ¾, Kennecott ¾, Chino ¾ and U. S. Smelting 1¾.

Among declines were American Beet Sugar, Baldwin Locomotive 1¾, American Smelting ¾, Inspiration ¾, Mexican Petroleum ¾, Texas Co. ¾, Westinghouse ¾, Marine preferred certificates 1¼, Industrial Alcohol ¾, Goodrich ¾, Kansas City Southern ¾, Central ¾, New Haven ¾, Northern Pacific ¾, Union Pacific ¾ and Reading ¾.

Among unchanged issues were American Smelting, Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Reading, Southern Pacific, Steel and Utah Copper.

Sales at 12 o'clock in Boston included Alloues ¾, North Butte ¾, Tamarack ¾, United ¾, Arcadian Consolidated ¾, Island Creek ¾ and Atlantic Gulf preferred ¾.

Among declines were American Zinc ¾, Butte & Superior ¾, Osceola ¾, Atlantic Gulf ¾, Davis-Daly ¾, Granby ¾, St. Mary's ¾ and New Idria ¼.

Other issues were unchanged.

NEW YORK OPENED STEADY.

Prices were steady at the opening of New York with price changes generally unimportant. An unusually large number of issues began unchanged. Those which showed price had an upward trend as a rule, aside from railroads. Of the latter class several declines. New Haven started with a point drop and was heavy. Int. R. Steel opened unchanged, and then sold a shade higher. The market was quiet and a matter of steadily rising prices were in appearing on the tape. Traders' views were of the same tenor as yesterday. Foreign sentiments were about all concentrated then there was little left for traders to do this morning but follow a Micawber policy. As Germany has denied responsibility for the sinking of the Sussex the next move is looked for at Washington. No drastic action, that is expected, but speculators are in a state of uncertainty. Reports as to the attitude of the Carranza government toward American troops south of the Rio Grande is causing uneasiness. Many look for a report that is meant to remain a waiting affair for months.

Among issues to advance at the start were Butte & Superior and Baldwin Locomotive. Crucible Steel climbed 1¾ at going. Crucible Steel climbed 1¾ to 93¾. After the first five minutes or so there was a diminution in the demand for stocks and while the selling pressure was light, the trend was towards a lower level. New Haven sold down to 61, off 2, before long. Within half an hour the list took on the aspects of irregularity.

U. S. SMELTING AT HIGHEST.

The Boston market was quiet at the start, but had more breadth than it displayed at the getaway yesterday. But a large proportion of issues began unchanged. Zincs were strong here and active. U. S. Smelting was strong and higher. It sold at 75, the highest price it has ever touched in either Boston or New York. The local list averaged higher. But gains were small.

The copper market began the week with increased demand. "There was," says a New York commentator, "a wide variation in prices ruled, every transaction of moment seems to be a law unto itself and the price is a matter of negotiation. The British government bought about 100,000,000 pounds of copper yesterday, this additional order calling for delivery through the last half of the year. The price is said to be 27 and 27½ cents a pound. It was said in Wall St. this means that the market is practically sold out for 1916 and copper prices will go up. Spelter and lead were strong. Lead was firm.

In London today spot copper and futures advanced £1 15s. and £1 10s. respectively. Spot tin was off 2, futures were up 10s. and Straits was off £2. Lead quotations were 5s. higher. Spot spelter and futures were £1 higher.

A whole page for the women—new menus, instructions on how to dress the hair, useful household hints—will be found in next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN.

MEN ON EASTERN SHIP LINE TALK NEW STRIKE

The Eastern Steamship Corporation, which is struggling with a strike of its engineers and firemen, faces the possibility of a freight handlers' strike as well, according to report which flashed along the waterfront today.

Following the example of Savannah and Clyde line freight handlers, the men handling freight for the Eastern Steamship Co. are said to be ready to demand higher wages.

Their demand may seem doubly unreasonable to the freight handlers. They are stimulated by the strike of their fellow handlers and the Eastern Steamship Corporation is already embarrassed by its troubles with the engine and firemen forces.

The strike of the latter crews continued today. The Governor Dingley was held here last night, likewise the Bellast of Bangor. The Bay State sailed from Portland for Boston last night several hours late, with only three of its original engineering force, the chief and two assistants. The others were secured hastily from outside.

The Calvin Austin sailed from here yesterday morning for Portland, Eastport and St. John, N. B., was held up at Portland by the strike and finally proceeded for Eastport several hours late with a compromise crew.

The Eastern Company carries large quantities of perishable and urgent freight. Shipments of fresh fish are particularly apt to suffer if held up by strikes or any other causes of delay.

"Peep, Peep," Pathetic Plea by the Easter Chick

Peep, peep!

"It's hard enough to have no mother but an incubator."

So says the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It is speaking on behalf of fluffy, downy little chickens.

By the same token it is speaking against the "Easter chick" sale—sale of little live chickens as Easter gifts. The S. P. C. A. is campaigning by means of a shower of postcards, which are written as though coming from the chicks. The postcard says:

"The children hurt us, unintentionally no doubt, then forget us, and we die a wretched death. Please speak against this cruel practice of buying us for Easter presents."

Face Peeling Habit Becoming Fashionable

Women of fashion and refinement in this country as in Europe seem to have adopted the unrefined wax habit, regarding less and less upon cosmetics to cover their complexion difficulties. It does not seem to just peel off the worn-out skin when it loses its youthful color and appearance—now that this can be done so easily, safely, painlessly and economically. There's no trouble getting mercolized wax at any drug store (ten ounces will do), since its virtues have become generally known here, and there's no trouble using it—just as you use cold cream applying at night, washing it off next morning. The wax takes off the pimples, freckles, tan, etc., a little each day. The new under-skin which gradually appears is velvety soft and beautiful, a little radiant with girlish loveliness. Even the surface troubles like blotches, red or yellow patches, freckles, etc., vanishes of course with the dreaded cuticle.

It has also become the fashion, when wrinkles begin to appear, to bathe the face once a day for a while in a harmless lotion made by dissolving an ounce of powdered saxolite in a half pint of witch hazel. This is remarkably effective in losing the hateful lines.—Advertisement.

ORPET'S TRIAL FOR MURDER ON MAY 15

By International News Service.

Waukegan, Ill., April 11.—William Orpet will be tried in Circuit Court of Lake County at Waukegan on May 15 for the murder of Marian Lambert in Helms woods, Lake Forest. Judge Charles Donnelly set the date today. Attorney Ralph Potter had sought to have the date postponed at least till June 1.

The reasons advanced by Potter for wanting the case postponed included:

That the defence needed time to work up its case, by which it seeks to prove Orpet is innocent and Marian Lambert committed suicide.

That no outside agency contributed to her death.

That Madison University students are unwilling to break into school studies to come here to testify.

That the defence has experts working on chemical analysis of poisons and their reports will not be ready before June 1.

Judge Donnelly admitted unwillingness to try such a case in hot weather and gave that as one reason for refusing further continuance.

TO END CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES

If you have Catarrhal Deafness or head noises go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar. Take a tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the inflamed mucus begin to disappear, the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Any one who has Catarrhal deafness or head noises should give this prescription a trial.—Advertisement.

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads and that is to dissolve them.

To do this get about two ounces of plain powdered borax from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin—pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get them out after they become fixed. The powdered borax and the water simply dissolve the blackheads as they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anybody troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.—Advertisement.

The Treatment of Influenza or La Grippe

It is quite refreshing these days to read of a clearly defined treatment for Influenza or La Grippe. In an article in the "Lancet-Clinic," Dr. James Bell, of New York City, says he is convinced that too much medication is both unnecessary and injurious.

When called to a case of la grippe, the patient is usually seen when the fever is present, as the chill which occasionally ushers in the disease, has practically passed away. Dr. Bell then orders that the bowels be opened freely with salts, "Citrates" or citrate of magnesia. For the high fever, severe headache, pain and general soreness, one anti-kamnia tablet every three hours is quickly followed by complete relief. Ask for A-K Tablets. They are also unexcelled for headache, neuralgia and all pains.

I guarantee a permanent Cure of Drink or Drug habit or no pay. No drugs. Address P. O. Box 1288, Boston.

AUTO SQUAD WILL TAKE ALL CARS FOUND IN THE STREET

Beginning next Monday, a "Flying squadron" from the Court square station will begin a drastic educational campaign for the benefit of automobile drivers who leave their machines standing on streets longer than the time set by law.

Hereafter, when such an automobile is found, the policemen, all of whom are competent chauffeurs, will insert a spark plug which each will carry, enter the machine and drive it to a garage. When the driver applies to the police he will be forced to pay storage charges.

Heretofore it has been customary for the officers to take the numbers of the machine and warn the owners. The "Flying Squadron" will consist of Special Officer Michael Travers, and Patrolmen Van Lanningham, Day, Driscoll, Lindsey.

James Whitcomb Riley's Contentment Message

By International News Service.

Cleveland, O., April 11.—A new poem by James Whitcomb Riley, a message of contentment to the people of the United States, was received from the poet by the Snow Monday Club. It follows.

No matter then how all is mixed
In our near-sighted eyes,
All things is fur the best and fixed
Out straight in Paradise.

Then take things as God sends 'em here,
And ef we live or die
Be more and more contenteder
Without a-kissing why.

REPORT 3 BILLS TO ABOLISH BOARDS

Three separate bills to abolish the present Public Service Commission, the State Board of Insanity and the Commission on Gratuities were approved by the Special Committee on Consolidations today in Governor McCall's sweeping plans for the abolition and consolidation of State boards and commissions.

The Public Service Commission bill wipes out the present board of five members and substitutes therefore a new board of three members, consisting of a chairman at a salary of $7,500, and two members at $7,000 each, to be appointed by the Governor. It will be known as the Board of Public Service Commissioners.

Chairman Frederick J. Macleod, whose salary is $8,500, and Commissioners John P. Meaney, Joseph B. Eastman, Everett E. Stone and Charles F. Russell, with a salary of $6,000 each, constitute the present board. Macleod, Meaney and Russell are Democrats. Stone is a Republican, Eastman has been generally known as a stalwart independent.

Representatives Lynch and Casey, two of the three Democratic members of the Committee on Consolidation, dissent from the plan to abolish the present board.

The insanity board bill provides for the abolition of the present commission of three paid members and the appointment by the Governor of a board of insanity, consisting of a director, who shall be paid $7,500, and four unpaid members.

Senator Hayes, Republican, and Representatives Lynch, Sawyer and Casey, the three Democrats, dissent from this plan.

The Commission on Gratuities was established by an act of 1915 to pass upon applications for gratuities for Civil War veterans.

The work of the commission has virtually been completed.

HARDING LOOMS BIG AS G. O. P. DARK HORSE

By JOHN EDWIN NEVIN.
By International News Service.

Washington, April 11.—United States Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio loomed large today as a potential "dark horse" candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination.

Harding is not an avowed candidate, but politicians were pointing out that he will be in a fine position to stampede the convention, whether he desires to or not, having been chosen as its temporary chairman. He can count on the support of the Middle Western combination if it shall be demonstrated early that one of its aspirants cannot win.

Harding is influential in Republican circles, has a wonderful platform presence and much personal magnetism. Chosen to sound the "keynote" of the Republican campaign, he will have an opportunity to impress his personality on the delegates, and many old-time politicians in both the Senate and the House today were telling their friends to keep watch on him especially if, as expected, the convention goes into a deadlock.

ROOSEVELT MOVEMENT.

The Roosevelt movement is making little headway here in Washington. There is a general feeling among politicians that the effort on the part of the Colonel's friends to show evidence of a stampede toward him is timed prematurely and the Republican leaders insist that a combination that will prevent his being nominated is certain.

The Old Guard, which has gone "easy" on the Roosevelt movement, declines to say the Colonel more than three hundred delegates at Chicago at the most.

Senator LaFollette was back at his desk in the Senate today, receiving the congratulations of his friends over his close victory in Wisconsin. He declined to discuss politics. Another prospective candidate who also is keeping mum was Senator Alden Smith of Michigan, who was defeated for "favorite son" by Henry Ford.

In this connection the political wiseacres do not regard the result in Michigan as much of a political barometer either of the Ford strength or the position of the Middle West on preparedness. They figure that there will be a real test on both when Ford and Senator Cummins clash in the Nebraska primaries.

In Nebraska the Establrook campaign is now attracting attention and Senators Norris and Hitchcock have both been asked whether certain factors of it, including alleged lavish expenditure, may not be fit subject for inquiry.

HUGHES STILL MUM.

Senator Boia Penrose is expected shortly to make an announcement regarding his position and the Roosevelt boom. At the same time his friends claim he will demonstrate that he still is the dominant power in Republican affairs in his State.

So far as the point of Justice Hughes is concerned all efforts to "smoke him out" have failed.

BOWLES ADVOCATES COMPULSORY SERVICE

"Compulsory service in the army or navy for all young men is the best way to advocate preparedness," declared Admiral Francis T. Bowles in his address today before the Women's Special Aid for American Preparedness, No. 691 Boylston street.

"I am no longer in active duty in the navy," he said. "Neither am I connected with any munition plant and I do not have to pay my respects to Josephus, so I am in a position to speak plainly and without any reserve upon this subject of preparedness.

"Conscription should take place in this country.

"It would awaken interest in the preservation of the country as well as give the most wholesome teaching about the value and importance of patriotism.

"We should have 150,000 men for a three-months' enlistment and a million of trained men in this country who could be called upon in the time of needed service."

The speaker paid a high tribute to the heroism of France in the present war.

LOSES FOREARM IN FACTORY BELT

Paul Garabedian, twenty-one, of Herd street, Chelsea, lost his left hand and part of his forearm in the main belt of the Sterling Shoe factory on Cresent avenue, Chelsea, today. John Fishman, another worker, grabbed Garabedian as he had gone over the pulley and dragged him away from more serious injury. Garabedian was taken to the Frost Hospital.

Hold Chelsea Man.

John H. Jennings, 24 years old, of Grove street, Chelsea, in the Chelsea Court today, charged with breaking and entering the home of Sam Friedman at No. 209 Third street, Chelsea, was held for the Grand Jury in $1,000 bonds.

OFFICIALS IN 'ARSON TRUST' INQUIRY

[illegible] fire officials of the state [illegible] Boston and Revere departments were summoned before the Suffolk Grand Jury today to testify in the investigation into the alleged "arson trust" existing in Greater Boston. About twenty witnesses were [illegible].

Assistant District Attorney Daniel H. Murray is presenting the evidence gathered by State Officer Edward Goodwin and Inspector John Linton of Boston police headquarters.

Among the police and fire witnesses were Inspector Thomas Towle of Boston, Lieutenant Edward Isbister of Revere, Lieutenant Howard S. Kent of the Chelsea Fire Department and Chief of the Revere Fire Department George Smith.

The investigation includes fires of a suspicious nature for the past year, and it is charged that many fires have been set in tenements and business buildings and insurance companies defrauded out of thousands of dollars.

KEITH'S BILL FILLED WITH FEATURES

IF YOU ARE LOOKING for music, comedy, novelties and high-class acting, all combined on one program, just drop in at Keith's this week and enjoy the good feast. "Feature" stands out all over the bill. There are at least four headliners with a host of up-to-the-minute supporting acts.

George Nash and company, including Julia May, heads the bill in Aaron Hoffman's new comedy, "The Face Painted." The laughs are many and Mr. Nash and his company scored a hit.

Melville Ellis and Irene Bordoni presented a series of songs which were very pleasing. Mr. Ellis presided at the piano. Miss Bordoni appeared in a few character songs in French and English. They were well received.

A most sensational dance production entitled, "The Lure of the Frozen North," was well presented by Bert French and Alice Hau. The mountain of liquid ice which forms the background for this act attracted considerable attention. Both Mr. French and Miss Ells are clever artists. Their act is indeed one of the most pleasing of the novelty kind, that has visited here for some time.

"Hiram on the Farm" was a decided hit. A laugh a minute was the schedule. Fred J. Ardath and his big company of "ad-libbers" and trained animals kept the house in very good humor. The audience laughed well into the next act.

Marion Weeks, the cute little girl with a marvelous voice, won admiration from all. Marion doesn't care obliged to sing many encores.

"Up" White, down on the program as a "Song Delineator," lived up to his title. "Al" pleased immensely. Others on the bill who help give you a feast are Arnold and Ethel Grazer, who present a new but musical novelty, and Ball and West, in their well-known act, "Days of Real

GIRLS IN SHOW HAVE NAUGHT TO WEAR

"A WORLD OF PLEASURE" is a good musical show. It's a really big one. And the girls are that way, too—some of them, at least. Others are more than plump—they're stouts. They'll stand for prosperous times in this show, but can tell. You don't have wrinkles in your back and find a job in "A World of Pleasure" if you're a skinny girl. And girls for the skeleton upon which this show is built. No, skeletons don't get the right word. Anatomy, so to speak.

What little clothing is worn in "A World of Pleasure" is modeled upon the latest style. The show is a sort of burlesque of the Diaghileff ballet, but with more pep, more spirit and less other nonsense. Once here feet peep out from under some impressive gowns and dance in a manner of the East. But no bare legs. When Mayor Curley announced that young stepdancers should wear bare feet but not bare legs he didn't believe it could be done. He thought they wouldn't wear feet down. But Curley is mistaken. Margaret Edwards had the brilliant pair of ankle-low tights that ever adorned it, and they stayed there just as did the Curley gold effect. But she didn't have much else to wear, a most sensuously sinuous dancer.

There are so many high spots in "A World of Pleasure" that they will leave much impression. Almost everything is a high spot. The audience attended the opening last night at the Shubert will recall particularly Margaret Edwards and Ed Gallagher in their $5,000 automobile, which was a scream. Also Collins and Hart in their eccentric promenade ladies. And pretty Rosie Quinn's good singing voice. And old Schnitzer-Hans Matthe Darling and Hans Timberg.

Of course, they won't forget Clifton Crawford's merry monologues. Crawford is the bright particular comedy star of a crop of comedy stars.

The other worthy entertainers include McMahon, Diamond and Chapelow, Helen Goff, Vanita Fitzhugh, Franklin Bath, and Emily Miles. There are eight brilliant scenes. The music is tuneful and lively, but has no striking originality. There is an unusually large chorus.

At the close of the first act is a remarkably well staged patriotic finale, in which the young corypheus wears a very attractive and original display of the star spangled banner.

"A World of Pleasure" is a worthy Winter Garden show but, as has not been the case before, did not draw a completely full house last night, probably because of the opera.

"THE PRINCE AND THE PAUPER," played last night at the Castle Square Theatre, is a delightful story of child life by Mark Twain, and is set in the good old days of England, when Henry VIII. reigned.

King Henry, however, has little to do in the play beyond dying and leaving the young Prince, Edward VI., to take up the reins of government, in so far as a lad of twelve is capable of doing.

While much of the charm and delightful humor of the author is lost in the play, real live acting adds in other ways. Last night, with Miss McDannel taking the parts of both the Prince and little pauper, the performance promised to rival in popularity last week's production of Mrs. Burnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

Miss McDannel's interpretation of the Prince and the beggar boy are true achievements in juvenile acting.

In general bearing, gestures, voice and facial expression she creates a delusion of boyishness—the finer type—which is convincing and pleasing. Seldom does an audience have an opportunity to see anything like successful child-acting on the stage because of the strict children's laws. It is, therefore, not surprising that one who can successfully portray and simulate a child is met with enthusiasm.

John Craig, as the faithful and kind-hearted Miles Hendon, drew hearty applause.

A fine piece of character work was done by Donalad Meek, as mad Anthony.

FENWAY THEATRE—"The Hero of Submarine D-2" is on the bill for the first three days of this week. Margaret Millea Henry, the soprano, and Henry Kelly, the baritone, render pleasing duets as well as solo numbers. Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew will appear the last of the week in their latest photo comedy, "Their Honeymoon." William S. Hart will also appear on the bill in "Hell's Hinges."

WALDRON'S CASINO—The Million Dollar Dolls Burlesquers all this week are presenting one of those diaphragm-vibrating shows that is full of action and merriment, rich in costumic and scenic beauty and interpreted by competent and popular players, assisted by a big company of young and pretty girls. At the head of the company are Lew Hilton and Lester Allen.

GLOBE THEATRE—There is a snappy vaudeville bill for the first half of this week that will appease the appetite of the most critical amusement seeker. As a headliner the management is offering Leo Perbillioff and Ethel Rose and the Imperial Ballet. The act is a novelty dancing classic comprising eight clever people.

ST. JAMES THEATRE—There is little doubt of the extraordinary merit of the entertainment offered for the first three days of the week. This fact was plainly evident yesterday by capacity audiences and frequent outbursts of applause. The program is topped by a comedy playlet entitled "A Case for Sherlock."

ORPHEUM THEATRE—A sextet of the most attractive mermaids that ever disported themselves in the convolutions of aquatic acrobatics were revealed in all their beauty and cleverness to capacity audiences yesterday. In a beautiful glass setting which enclosed a large tank with overhanging mirrors that enabled those in the orchestra to observe the interior of the tank, the young women, calling themselves the "Six Water Lilies," exhibited the various styles of diving.

"PAGANINI" IS SPLENDIDLY PLAYED BY ARLISS

GEORGE ARLISS, whose Disraeli made him a familiar and delightful figure in Boston playgoers, came to the Hollis Street Theater last night in Edouard Knoblauch's "Paganini," and portrayed the famous and eccentric violinist of the early nineteenth century. At the close of the second act he succeeded in the overwhelming of his audience by the frenzied applause which obtained in the final scene.

Margaret Woode, daughter of Cyril Maude, of "Grumpy" fame, was the leading English girl whose sentimental infatuation for the great artist furnished the theme of the play.

Mr. Arliss as Paganini was said to be no less the great Italian virtuoso than he was in the part of Disraeli, and his Paganini is every eccentricity is equally the result of careful study of character he reproduced. But beyond the fact that each has a unique central character, the parts are not alike. Disraeli dwindled for dramatic interest upon politics and political intrigue; Paganini has a more appealing theme.

Mr. Arliss' characterization made the great violinist a real and a lovable character. Miss Maude played her part with good sense and poise, so that though as an infatuated young girl she might easily have appeared silly or exasperating, she was neither, but won sympathy from the beginning. In her "big scenes" she rose splendidly to her opportunities.

The supporting cast was effective. It included Mrs. Arliss as Lady Strangford, a part which she presented in finished fashion. Her Lady Descenfield in "Disraeli" is well remembered. The performance of Charles Harbury as Thomas Watson was especially good.

Others in the cast included Dudley Digges as Paganini's secretary, Edgar Kent, Dion Titheradge, Florence Auer, Noel Tearle, Fred Nicholls, Rosina Henley and Leila Repton. Several of these players were in the "Disraeli" company.

MODERN THEATRE—Bertha Kalich made her Boston debut in the photodrama at this theatre where she will be shown for the entire week in the William Fox production, "Slander." As an artiste of great emotional power this talented woman has been universally commended and long ago established herself as one of the best tragediennes on the speaking stage.

PARK THEATRE—Thousands are being turned away this week as Mary Pickford is the leading attraction in the greatest success of her career, "The Eternal Grind." In "The Eternal Grind," Miss Pickford plays a totally different role from usual, one that is certain to become one of her most popular impersonations—the capable, undaunted, powerful personality which rises unflinchingly to meet every crisis in a life of hardship.

SOCONY KERO-SCENES

"What's this here red, white and blue sign on the door, Oliver? Su'thin new, ain't it?

"Signs of the times, Uncle. That's the SOCONY Kerosene sign."

"Hey?"

"No. Kerosene—SOCONY. That's the name of the Standard Oil Company of New York's best kerosene. I sell it."

"Well now, you don't tell me! What'll they be doing next? Years ago, ile was ile. We didn't ask for no name. We took what we got."

"And got what you deserved. But people know better nowadays. My customers know that, while SOCONY is all kerosene, all kerosene isn't SOCONY. They know the Standard Oil Company of New York wouldn't put it's name—SOCONY—on a product unless it was the best. SOCONY is clean-burning, economical, pure. When you ask for SOCONY, you always are sure what you're getting."

"And do folks really ask for SOCONY?"

"You said something. So far as this store is concerned, there's no such word as kerosene. It's been replaced absolutely by SOCONY."

"Well, well! I'll have to remember SOCONY after this, I vow."

"DER ROSENKAVALIER" GIVEN AT OPERA

By FRED J. McISAAC.

"DER ROSENKAVALIER," a three-act opera by Richard Strauss, was given its first Boston performance by the Metropolitan company last night.

A Strauss work always manages to attract interest. This opera is the most talked-of among recent compositions for the stage, and it packed the Opera House last night.

Although there was no unbounded enthusiasm after each act, it was evident that the opera pleased most of those present, and the melodic spots, such as the Viennese waltz at the end of the second act, were warmly welcomed.

Richard Strauss, the writer of "Salome" and "Elektra," numerous symphonic works, songs and other compositions, has traveled further than any of the followers of Wagner, though whether along the right road or not, posterity will be better able to judge.

STRAUSS MASTER OF ORCHESTRATION.

It would be too much to expect that a man so marvelously learned technically should also be gifted with the melodic genius of a Haydn, Mozart or even Wagner, and Strauss' failing to be a great-est of all musicians is due to the commonplaceness of his lyric output.

TELLS WHY STRAUSS OPERAS HAVE FAILED.

The unattractiveness of most of the themes which he a marvelously develope is almost pathetic. He is like a man who had no Tiffany setting made for a common pebble, and as melody is the jewel of music, it is easy to understand why each of Strauss' operas have failed almost as soon as they have been produced.

"Salome" is rarely given today, and then only to display soma sensational soprano. "Elektra" is performed nowhere. His earliest opera met the same fate. "Rosenkavalier" is a failure to please the popular taste, but the same paucity of melodic inspiration will probably condemn it.

Strauss, like most modern Germans who write operas, thinks of his voices as instruments of the orchestra rather than solo voices. Many of his arias are based among the woodwinds or violoncellos, while the singers are left to lyrical declamation. But there are several airs for soprano, contralto and bass in which ring pleasantly upon the ear.

MUSIC IS VOCALLY VERY DIFFICULT.

The music is exceptionally difficult to sing because of the apparently unending and unbalanced intervals demanded of the artists. It is difficult to criticize the singers, since nobody who hasn't the score in front of him can judge whether the voices are singing what was written or something else again.

The story of the opera is rather light. Strauss calls it "Rococo." Nevertheless the orchestration is so ponderous, that it makes one think of a man trying to shoot ducks with a forty-two-centimeter gun.

Baron Ochs, a sort of German Falstaf, is betrothed to Herr and sends to her, in accordance with the custom, a silver rose by the hands of a youth called "The Rose Cavalier." This particular cavalier is called Octavian, a handsome youth with whom Resie immediately falls in love. Octavian then impersonates a young woman, fascinates the old baron and gets him in a compromising situation. In this way, the old gentleman is induced to withdraw his suit and Octavian wins Herthas.

PRINCESS ROLE SUNG BY HEMPEL.

Frieda Hempel has made her first appearance during the engagement as the Princess for whose protection Octavian first assumes feminine apparel. Margarita Oberle is the Octavian, Kirk Mason the Sophie and Otto Goritz, Baron Ochs.

Hempel, Mason and Oberle possess three of the loveliest voices in opera today, and the music allotted to them is perfect, at least displayed them in all their beauty. Oberle's duet with Hempel as well as sang delightfully. Her impersonation of a boy masquerading as a girl was convincing. Miss Mason as Sophie sang the curious music with great musicianship and exquisite tone. She is by far the best equipped of the American girls who have joined the Metropolitan in recent years.

GORITZ COMEDIAN, AND SINGER AS WELL.

Frieda Hempel has made the Princess one of her best roles. She also sings delightfully.

Otto Goritz, a prime comedian as well as a good German baritone, got a lot of fun out of the lovelorn Baron Ochs.

The humor of the piece is rather coarse and lots of many suggestive situations have been eliminated for the American stage, though enough to show what it must have been. All the small parts are finely performed. Mr. Bodanzky made a number of cuts in the score but the opera doesn't suffer greatly. The orchestra, as usual, played superbly.

FINE PROGRAM FOR SATURDAY'S BALLET.

Mr. Gatti-Casazza has arranged an interesting program of dances for the ballet divertissement, which will follow the performance of Bellini's "La Sonnambula" at the Opera House Saturday evening. Miss Rosina Galli, the premiere danseuse, is a skilled and graceful dancer, and much has been heard of Giuseppe Bonfiglio, the principal male dancer.

Don't Let a Cold Get a Good Start

The way to check a cold is to fight it from the first. Even then most maladies often are easily entered if attacked early enough. Colds may lead to asthma, bronchial troubles and pulmonary affections. In the treatment of these one of the first needs is to build up the resistance.

Eckman's Alterative often has satisfied in such upbuilding. As a treatment for the troubles named, it has been used for more than twenty years. And in many instances it has effected lasting results.

As with any other medicine, it should be regarded only as a first aid to right care and hygienic living—and a safe one. For it contains no narcotics, opiates or habit-forming drugs of any sort. Sold by all Leggett-Dupuy Drug Stores and leading druggists.

No Trouble to Remove Superfluous Hair

(Toilet Tips)

It is an easy matter to rid the skin of objectional hair or fuzz, if you proceed as follows: Mix a paste with some water and a little powdered delatone, apply to hairy surface and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This method of banishing hairy growths is painless and does not mar the skin, but to avoid disappointment, be certain to get real delatone.—Advertisement.

GIRLS! ACT NOW! HAIR COMING OUT MEANS DANDRUFF

25-cent "Danderine" will save your hair and double its beauty.

Try this! Your hair gets soft, wavy, abundant and glossy at once.

Save your hair! Beautify it! It is only a matter of using a little Danderine occasionally to have a head of heavy, beautiful hair; soft, lustrous, wavy and free from dandruff. It is easy and inexpensive to have pretty, clean hair and that is all if you get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and, after a single application of it, your hair will take on an appearance of abundance; freshness, fluffiness and will be full of life, gloss and lustre, and try as you will you can find no trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real delight will be after about two weeks' use when you will note new hair coming fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair growth, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itchy scalp and it never fails to bring lustre, beauty and abundance to the hair.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few minutes—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this.—Advertisement.

SAYS THOUGHT HE WAS SURELY GONE

South Braintree Contractor Tells of How He Has Now Regained His Health.

Nature, like an army when attacked, has warnings and signals which should never go unheeded. When the stomach, liver or kidneys suffer slight derangements, they send out their hurry calls to be sure, but these are but warning note, which frequently takes the form of headache, dizziness, gas on the stomach, constipation, nervousness, pains in the back or side, dullness, sleeplessness, etc. Nine out of ten people ignore these first symptoms and so until serious illness has laid them low before they seek relief.

Plant Juice, the new herbal stomach remedy, resists Nature and will bring relief in practically all cases of deranged stomach, liver and kidneys. Thousands of people in Boston are testifying to the benefit they have received, after they had practically given up hope of sickness, discomfort and relief.

One of the latest testimonials is that of Mr. Charles A. Hobart, who lives at No. 631 Washington street, South Braintree, and is a well known contractor, having many friends in Quincy. Mr. Hobart has also been special police officer. He stated:

"I have suffered from indigestion and dyspepsia for about three years. Everything I ate would turn sour in my stomach and cause gas to form there and I was all bloated and suffered agony. I was so dizzy that one morning I thought I was surely gone; I had pains all over my body and was so nervous I could not sleep at night. After two weeks' treatment of Plant Juice I can truthfully say, for the benefit of others who suffer, that it has put my stomach in fine condition; I can eat any kind of food and digest it. I sleep well at night and feel refreshed in the morning. I heartily indorse Plant Juice."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Hovgaten & Dutton Co.'s store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

ATTRACTIONS AT THE THEATRES

GAIETY THEATRE—Bert Baker, Pete LaTour and the new Bon Tons are here this week with a breezy burlesque called "Peppers." Mr. Baker is the same happy-go-lucky Irish comedian who finds it easy to get into a pleasing laughing mix. His jokes are clean and his entire work is extremely pleasing.

BOSTON THEATRE—Owen Johnson's wonderfully fascinating romance of the adventures of a little girl amid the wolves of a great city, "The Salamander," adapted from the well-read novel by Austin Strong, is to-day the hit the first three days of this week. Anything short of this book have been sold, and nearly everyone is familiar with the story.

FRANKLIN PARK THEATRE—Sir-ual Mrs. Vernon Castle in "The Whirl of Life," a thrilling romance of high life and low life, is the headliner for the first half of the week.

Motor Notes.

B. J. C. KERRISON.

The death of Bobby Burman in the race at Corona, Cal., on Saturday is much regretted by all racing men. Probably one of the greatest automobile race drivers the world has ever known. He has done more for racing advancing motoring in the speedway. He has attacked records at all distances, and was considered as the topnotcher among the drivers of the day.

He was known as "Wild Bobby," owing to his ability to drive laps in record time and his determination in all events to secure the best his motors possessed.

Arrangements have been completed for a twenty-four hour automobile race at Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn, Friday and Saturday, June 16 and 17. The contest will be open only to stock cars only and an interesting contest can be expected.

A new automobile, due to the wearing in newly assembled parts, requires a little more careful attention during the first months of its career than it will thereafter. It would be well if new cars should be inspected within their first 500 or 600 miles by the stock a second inspection should be made after 1,000 or 1,500 miles of service, or within one or two months' time irrespective of mileage.

An announcement which has been expected for some time was made on Friday by Mr. Walker, vice president and director of sales of the Pathfinder Company, namely, an increase in the price of Pathfinder Twin six cars. There will be no advance in prices of the company's six-cylinder models at this time.

Harvard Blanks Hose
Mahan Shines on Slab

By HERMAN NICKERSON.

If three or four days in the open can make a ruffled team look as Harvard did yesterday in its game with the World's Champions, then there is smaller argument against these long training trips for the major league clubs.

Coach Fred Mitchell's charges certainly gave an excellent account of themselves, and while the Champions did not extend themselves, they were played off their feet by the boys who hope to beat Yale. The wearers of the Crimson had decidedly more life and spirit and pulled off several plays which displayed the extent of their excellent coaching.

It didn't make a particle of difference to the Champions whether they won or lost, and they viewed the game more as a joke than anything else. Still, that is a poor alibi if any were needed. They got some work and saw a good, scrappy article of ball put up by the boys from across the Charles.

Coach Mitchell said before the game, in his usual modest manner, that he didn't know exactly what kind of a team he had, as he hadn't seen his outfield work at all, what little these three boys had to do they did well, while the infield went like a well-oiled machine, pulling double plays with great regularity and dispatch.

These double plays choked off possible Red Sox runs, while the pitching of Mahan and torrent for Harvard was enough to hold the hard-hitting team, which hopes to repeat in the season's frolic for the American League pennant.

EDDIE MAHAN THERE.

Mahan worked five innings and held the Red Sox to three scattered hits. Two men reached second and one got as far as third, only to be caught at the plate. Two hits were all the Champions could get off Garrett in the four innings he twirled. So you see the men didn't have their eye on the ball to any great extent.

In four times at bat Walker, who is to play centre field for the Champions, made one hit. He had no fielding chance. Greeg worked five innings for the World's Beaters and should not have been scored upon; in fact, the lone run was due to an error. So while the victory for the Crimson is sweet, it is also tainted. McHale did the work in the last four innings and came through nicely, a scratch hit being the sum of the endeavor of the Harvard boys to solve his delivery.

SHORTEN'S GREAT CATCH.

Shorten made another one of those running catches he has been pulling and covered ground. Fripp, for Harvard, was a live wire, as was Abbot at second, and Reed played a nice game at short.

Harte, the catcher, evidently has a good throwing arm, for he nailed Janvrin on a bunt by Hobby with a throw to second which was some play.

Coolidge was the heavy hitter for Harvard, getting two hits in four times at bat, during which he drew two bases on balls, so he came through with a clean record. The other hits made by the Crimson were a clean one by Harte and a scratch hit by Knowles, a roller to Hobby on which Gregg failed to cover the bag. Coach Mitchell's charges played an errorless game.

Gregg had little difficulty disposing of the Harvard boys for three innings, and had two men out in the fourth when Abbot hit one at Gardner, who threw high to Hobby. Harte came across with a clean one to right field, putting Abbot on third and taking second on the throw in.

Knowles jammed one between first and second, pulling Hobby over to stop the run, and Gregg, instead of covering the sack, was roaming around down toward the third-base line. This scratch hit scored the only run the Harvard boys could get. Gregg hit Fripp, but Reed fled to Hooper.

School Boys in Initial Row on Charles

Huntington, Brookline, High defeated the Chamber of Commerce and Allied Arts, the four schools making up the Boston Interscholastic Rowing Association, which tried out their new shells, under the supervision of coach Fairon Manning, on the Charles yesterday afternoon.

The boys covered about two miles between the Harvard and Cottage Farm Bridges. The line-ups:

Brookline, first crew—Lyman, cox.; John son, 2; Tyler, 3; Sexton, 4; Bell, bow; Sculley, coxswain. Second crew—Dillon, cox.; Hall, 2; Morrison, 3; Merrick, 4; Sullivan, bow; Wade, coxswain.

Huntington School, first crew—Ogden, stroke; Gartland, 3; Crockett, 2; Bell, bow; Sculley, coxswain. Second crew—Dillon, cox.; Hall, 2; Morrison, 3; Merrick, 4; Sullivan, bow; Wade, coxswain.

Hodgkins, first crew—Lyman, cox.; John son, 2; Tyler, 3; Sexton, 4; Bell, bow; Sculley, coxswain. Second crew—Mackin, cox.; Ames, 2; Bullock, 3; Bell, 4; Bell, bow; Bell, coxswain.

Hodge Tech, Rubin, stroke; Ingels, 3; Sculley, 2; Phipps, bow; Kwatta, coxswain. High school of Commerce, first crew—Nelson, stroke; Delvey, 3; Shea, 2; Lacy, bow; Cowing, coxswain. Second crew—Shea, stroke; Laird, 3; Jones, 2; Sassone, bow; Cowing, coxswain.

Huntington School, first crew—Ogden, stroke; Gartland, 3; Crockett, 2; Bell, bow; Sculley, coxswain. Second crew—Dillon, cox.; Hall, 2; Morrison, 3; Merrick, 4; Sullivan, bow; Wade, coxswain.

SOCCER SHOTS

By defeating the Methuen F. C. on Saturday, the U. S. M. C. A. soccer team advanced to the semi-finals of the Lawrence and Lowell District League.

* * *

Apparently Lynn Hibs had a bad time defeating Charlestown, but when it is taken into consideration that this is the first game they have played in three months and trying out several new players it does not show quite so bad.

* * *

According to reports, it is apparent that the Providence Clevelands would rather have the Fallmans of Chicago play off in the semi-final round for the championship of the State series.

* * *

Lynn Fosse will have a week's rest before tackling Springfield at the Springfield Oval in the fourth round of the State series.

Where will the St. Georges-Triton postponed game be played? Both teams are handicapped in having to play on public parks.

* * *

Duncan McTavish, who at one time was very useful at inside left for General Electrics has signed with the Triton F. C. and will play in his usual position at left full back.

Clan Sutherland has made a few strikes in strolling up Billy Sanderson, ex-Alerdonian centre forward and late of Bridgeport and New York.

* * *

Hanford of Trimon played for the Hibs on Saturday. It is rumored that the game aggregation is trying to get his signature to the "M." but Secretary Calder says nothing to it but "Trimon."

SPEAKER OFF FOR WEST

Did Not Squabble with President Lannin Over Purchase Money; Expects Fitting Salary.

This Speaker, Boston's baseball idol of late years and the Red Sox's best bet in their 1912 and 1916 world's championship conquests, left for Cleveland, his new address, last night.

His final declaration to the fans of Boston was:

It's a tough good-bye to have to make, but I have nothing to do but go West. It's hust ess, I read. I never forget the many pleasant Summers I had here and want the AMERICAN to let the fans know that I'm "pulling" for the Red Sox to win without me.

Speaker left for Cleveland at 11:15 last night. He arrived there this afternoon and plans acting both chiefly at once. He is hopeful he will be made a fitting offer and in counting upon, entering the box as an Indian in tomorrow's game with the Indians.

It is said Speaker made no attempt to secure any of the purchase money from President Lannin. With this an accepted fact, the Cleveland club will have to offer Tris four seasons at record breaking salary to get him, as to all big baseball sales of late years the player has always received a "slice" of the money going for his release.

"Speaker must settle his differences with Cleveland," said President Lannin. "His work here in Boston and he has been officially notified he is the property of the Cleveland club. It is with Secretary McRoy and the Cleveland management that he must carry on any negotiations he may have in view."

DATES ISSUED FOR HARVARD REGATTA

The Harvard invitation regatta, open to the Boston Interscholastic and the Schoolboy Rowing Association crews, will be held at Worcester, Groton, Springfield High, Cascadilla and Worcester High crews will be held May 17, 18 and 19, Decoration Day.

The winner of the Schoolboy Rowing Association title will receive the winner in the Boston Interscholastic Rowing Association series for the championship of Upper Boston. There will also be an eight-oared race between two all-interscholastic crews.

JOHNSON NOT FOR REDS.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 11.—Vernon claims that Judge Johnson, wanted by Garry Herrmann for the Reds, will not be allowed to take a fling over to the Reds, will remain a member of the local club, the question of ownership having been settled.

Address all communications to "Heinie" Gilman, Boylston street, Malden.

Killing the Goose That Laid the Golden Egg

Once upon a time there lived a man who had a goose that laid golden eggs. But not frequently enough to suit the owner. So he slaughtered the bird in order to grab the poor beast's entire capital stock at one swoop. You remember the fable—and the moral. At divers times since numerous business men, so-called, have done likewise, and with similar result.

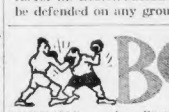
Once upon a time the Boston National League baseball club had a goose that laid golden eggs. But the owners became greedy, sold their best ball players as fast as they developed, and finally killed the goose. In the long, lean years that followed it was a rare day when a paying crowd saw the Boston Nationals. It was difficult to give away free tickets to the ball game before Miracle Man Stallings and a liberal capital investment in keeping with the magnitude of our Great National Pastime revived National League baseball in Boston.

On the other hand, the American League has always had a goose that l● golden eggs in Boston. The visiting teams always carried away good profits. The Taylors retired from the game with a tidy compensation for their investment. The McAleers came here, stayed a little more than a year and carried away a small fortune. Then the present ownership appeared, fattened the goose a little more during the general Federal League panic and drew the customary golden eggs.

But fifty thousand golden goose-eggs all at once and a chance to reduce salary expense have tempted the management, and Speaker—the man who above all others has kept the Red Sox in the running—becomes the property of one of our busiest competitors. And the Red Sox management pays a dividend out of capital. The result is likely to be the same as that policy always produces in other businesses than baseball. It is certain so to be if the policy continues.

This is but another case of killing the goose that laid the golden eggs.

This is the case as it affects the Red Sox management. As for the Boston baseball public—the sale of Speaker cannot be defended on any ground.



BOXING BRIEFS AND GOSSIP

Naturally, a Joe Eagan-Ted (Kid) Lewis match suits Eddie Mack, the former's demure manager. It will likewise suit New York, state and Brooklyn boxing commissioners. It also had charge of the Madison Square Garden boxing bouts, now known as the Atlas A. A., doesn't want the number for the Arena.

In reality, Eagan and Lewis would give the New York fans a much better run for their money than the Britisher's bout with Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul Phantom, which is on the boxing menu for May 18.

Boston fans must applaud Johnston for giving Eagan the recognition the South Boston lad deserves, following his recent brilliant performance with Mike Glover. Johnston states that nothing will suit him better than to match Lewis with Eagan, as per his letter to the AMERICAN hints strongly that if Boston doesn't want the scrap he may go to it for the Garden.

New York had it yesterday that Charley White, and Matt Wells are to meet at the Arena on or about April 18 or 20. Perhaps the Atlas A. A. will give it out today.

At Shubert, the New Bedford bantam did not box in New York last Saturday night, despite Big Broadway advertisements. At's manager, John Miller, writes the AMERICAN thusly:

"As I said in my letter to the AMERICAN a week ago, when forced to cancel the Mickey Brown date, I was also forced to call off a New York date owing to Bernstein's injury. Al is now at the service of the Boston clubs any time they want him.

"New Bedford's new club opens Tuesday night and Shubert goes on with 'Dutch' Brandt of Brooklyn. The Waling A. A. is the name of the club. The bout is to be twelve rounds to a decision at 115 pounds, ringside.

"April 19, in the afternoon, Shubert boxes 'Kid' Williams in New Bedford. No decision will be given, as Williams won't stand for one. The weight is to be 118 pounds."

Boston is to have another athletic club, label, the Olympia, A. A., that Ben Osthues goes in as president, T. H. Deming as vice-president and Arthur Duffey as secretary-treasurer. The tip is out that the new club plans some big things pugilistic.

Pains in Back.

There is nothing more effective for bringing soothing relief to those having backache than Minard's liniment, a creamy liquid Dr. Minard prescribed many years ago. You will be surprised to see how quickly it acts—how clean, pleasant and economical it is to use. It is a dependable liniment, because it is an antiseptic of great merit and drives all pain away almost instantly.—Advertisement.

ALL OHIO EXCITED NOW

It's Because Speaker Has Been Bought by Indians—$12,500 Salary and $5,000 Bonus.

Cleveland, April 11.—Cleveland is baseball mad over Tris Speaker's purchase by the Indians, and the ex-Red Sox star is expected to put this city back on the map.

Baseball business here has been villainously bad of late years ,so bad, in fact, that it broke Charley Somers, who was a millionaire when he took hold of the local club.

When the new owners got the club, there was a slight revival of interest, but it was lukewarm until the news came that Speaker was to be an Indian.

Then, in a trice, all was changed. Everywhere baseball and the Indians' chance in the 1916 race are being discussed and good weather will see all local records broken for the first day's attendance tomorrow, when the Indians open with the Browns.

IT'S BASEBALL MAD.

The Chamber of Commerce, always noted as a staid organization, has bought 1,000 seats in a block and other organizations have done likewise. There will be a big band concert and cabaret singers will help entertain the crowd until Mayor Davis walks out to pitch the first ball.

A bunch of Elk boosters have purchased a huge silk banner to be presented to President Dunn and it will be floated from the tall flagpole in centre field and there will be all sorts of gifts for popular players.

Speaker, when he walks to the plate for the first time, will undoubtedly get one of the greatest ovations ever given a ball player on his first appearance with a team.

Indeed, indeed, is simply baseball crazy, for the fans have something to enthuse over for the first time since 1908 for when Lajoie and late Addie Joss came so near winning a pennant for this city.

WHAT SPEAKER WANTS.

President James Dunn arrived here from Chicago at noon yesterday. He at once got together to Speaker and come to Cleveland to settle the deal.

"I believe I can arrange details with Speaker better after a personal talk," Dunn said.

It is reported here that Speaker wants a contract for two years at $12,500 a year, and $5,000 of the total amount for forthcoming Stallings will do his utmost to achieve a threatened win at least. He says if the boys lose, but before the game it's a cinch he will tell everyone he knows Boston cannot lose.

Among our callers last night was Captain Tillie Walker, part owner of the New York Highlanders; Ed Barrow, head of the International League, and Jim McCafferty, boss of the Toronto Club, who one day hopes to be a soldier, and several New York scribes.

The boys had a brisk workout on Fordham Field yesterday.

Braves Play Fordham
All's Well for Opening

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

New York, April 11.—This, ladies and gentleman, marks the end of a perfect Spring. Today the budding National League "champeens" clashed with Fordham varsity and tomorrow they go after the grand old pennant in earnest.

Heretofore this Spring's encounters have been more or less of the kidding nature, but after this afternoon's clash with Dick Rudolph's alma mater there's nothing of the joking nature about the work of the boys.

George Stallings would liked to have had Rudolph work against the boys of his old school. However, inasmuch as the "Little Master" seems destined to open the big clash in Brooklyn tomorrow there was little hope of his working today.

The squad was not at all surprised when P. D. Haughton, the well-known football coach and president, arrived this morning. Inasmuch as it wouldn't be proper to tear open a National League tournament. The same city also has the pair second in line, Beck and Thompson, 574.

Lawrence and Ghsen of Washington Field, paired the double ducks to 665 and Crowley and Spless, also of this city, moved into second place with 647. "Buck" Harley, one of the famous Washington shooters who scored at Mechanics Building last Spring, displaced Kelley of Lowell in the single ducks, with 352. Kelley is now second.

Colonial Club of Dorchester was represented in the double ducks. Chandler and House got well in the prize list with 661, while Wilde and Hoyt were but nine pins behind. In the evening the team rolled the five-men Duckpin event and got a total of 1,453.

TAD JONES MISSES INAUGURAL AT YALE

New Haven, Ct., April 11.—Seventy-five men answered Captain Blacke's call for candidates for the Yale football team. The meeting was held in the trophy room of the Yale gymnasium.

"Tad" Jones, the new head coach, was not present. "We've got to get down to business and prove something," Black said.

Opening football practice will start May 1, but men who are competing in any other sport will not be expected to report.

TWO MORE NEW YORK STARS IN MARATHON

Included in the new entries for the B. A. A. Marathon, which takes place May 19, are Oscar Jansen, Swedish-American A. C., Brooklyn; Joseph Gallagher, the Bronx Church House A. A.; Heaphy J. Denihan, Recreation Association, Fitchburg; J. H. Kerwin, East Boston, and T. M. Cahill, Fort Banks.

CAMBRIDGE GAME OFF.

Today's game on Soldiers' Field between Harvard and Bowdoin has been postponed until tomorrow on account of the soggy condition of the playing field.

IS UP TO REVERE BOXER

Walter Butler on with Frankie Mack at Hippodrome. Triumph Means Big Bookings.

PROGRAM AT ARMORY A. A.

Walter Butler, Revere, vs. Frankie Mack, Beachmont, 12 rounds.

Charley Byers, South End, vs. Al Nelson, Manchester, N. H., 8 rounds.

Tony Lorenzo, North End, vs. "Red" Kelly, Charlestown, 6 rounds.

Johnny McInnis, Lynn, vs. Young Levinsky, Lowell, 6 rounds.

Referee—Maffitt Flaherty.

Starting time—8 p. m.

WALTER BUTLER of Revere and Frankie Mack of Beachmont are the topliners in tonight's merry game of fisticuffs at the Hippodrome and the indications are that their twelve-round encounter will be viewed by a mob that will completely pack the Tremont street playshop from pit to gallery, including every available foot of standing space on the stage.

While a local production, pure and simple, not causing a flick of enthusiasm elsewhere than Boston and the immediate neighborhood, it is a fistic scrap the talent has long been wanting to see pulled off under the conditions that will prevail tonight. Butler, not to mention E. Honolulu Mack's crack charge, Joe Eagan, the south Boston welterweight, is Greater Boston's present boxing pet. Now, Butler may merely prove a flash-in-the-pan and be bowled over by Mack and never step on Big Time Ajax. Likewise may it be inserted that the Revere Rocket may prove a sizzling sensation; administer a boxing lesson and a sweet spanking generally to Master Frankie and, then, forthwith be rated Greater Boston's particular ring idol.

IT'S UP TO MACK.

Mack must whip Butler, and do a thorough job, if he is to be considered seriously hereafter, so far as windup starts before big clubs is concerned. That's because the Beachmont boy beat Butler in receiving recognition from the promoters. Mack was generally known as a year-near star a year or so back.

Unfortunately for Frankie, however, he hasn't come through quite as dexterously as his followers hoped. He gummed up the cards at the time the Armory A. A. management had the stage set to settle the up-to-date lightweight championship of New England, and followed by pulling a very doleful performance against Eddie Murphy, South Boston's third noted welterweight.

As for Butler, Walter has landed on Big Time through boxing and pleasing; not stalling or seeking newspaper notoriety. When satisfied he would never secure the desired local recognition, unless going away and bunching a lot of triumphs, Butler hit it up over the N'gosh circuit, working on an average of twice a week during the Fall and Winter.

BUTLER WELL HANDLED.

Allied with a clever manager, Charley Deshler of Cambridge, brother of Dave Deshler of ring and burlesque fame, who spent a greater portion of their earnings sending long-distance phone messages to the Boston papers, keeping them acquainted with Walter's triumphs, but always only stating facts, never shouting what is termed "the bull," Butler landed in sportdom's spotlight along on true legitimate lines.

Butler looms up as one of this vicinity's best prospects for the forthcoming big season at the Arena. He is confident he will dispose of Mack; will then work hard in training quarters to take off the few pounds he must drop to rank as an in-and-out lightweight, and will then be ready for White, Leonard and the rest of the Best Bets.

Mish Murray's antics still looks like just about the banner one of the Hip season. The semi-final brings together Al Nelson of Manchester, N. H., who is in Butler's stable, and Charley Byers, who is always in shape and generally pleases. The usual two six-rounders will start the show, with Maffitt Flaherty handling all four set-tos.

Haughton Signs to Continue as Harvard Coach

PERCY HAUGHTON, king of all football coaches, and newly elected president of the Braves, is to continue as Harvard's head football coach.

This announcement has been officially made by the Harvard A. A.

It is officially announced that Leo Leary has been appointed field coach. This doubtless means that Leary will run Harvard football affairs until the baseball season is over when Haughton will take command.

Haughton's old football coaching stipend was $15,000 a year. It is said that he has ordered himself to be cut, as he will be unable to be on the ground as much as heretofore. Hence, doesn't think he should draw his old princely figure.

Haughton has signed a new contract, it is announced by the Harvard A. A. It is for one year only.

TAYLOR LOST TO EIGHT

Harvard Crew Undergoes Change Owing to Crack Oarsman Being Forced to Quit Seat.

HARVARD'S development for its race with Princeton, on Carnegie Lake, less than ten days away, is apt to be retarded by the loss of Mose Taylor, the big football guard, who will be out of practice for a few days at least because of a poisoned hand.

Taylor has been rowing a strong stroke and his loss comes at a time when Coach Herrick seeks to have every one of the members of his first and second eights rowing daily, so as to be ready for the Princeton varsity and substitute crews, which are to be met Thursday of next week.

Taylor has been rowing at No. 2 in the varsity boat and, to fill in, Harry Middendorf has been drafted from the second crew, in which he had been rowing at No. 6. Pope of the third crew advanced to the vacancy left by Middendorf in the second eight.

Representatives of Swasey, Raymond & Duffy, the naval architects, followed the varsity closely in the freak shell which the firm designed, partially from its own plans, and those suggested by Coach Herrick.

The regular eight, after a half mile, in this shell, which may be taken to Princeton for the races, returned to the boat house, and launched the new Davy shell which arrived last Friday.

Herrick dispelled early the meeting of the Harvard Board of Overseers in order to be at his post. For more than ten years he has seldom missed a day of Spring practice and the crews would feel lost indeed if his cheery presence wasn't somewhere in the vicinity of the boat house.

Bigger Charley Hart will take the shells to Princeton Saturday, immediately after the practice on the Charles, which may be held in the morning. The varsity and second crews will leave Cambridge Sunday and row twice daily on Lake Carnegie until the day of the race.

LOTS OF MUSIC AT RED SOX INAUGURAL

All arrangements have been completed for a banner opening at the way Park tomorrow. The regular opening game festivities will take place and Mayor Curley will toss out the first ball. As usual, the boxes of the Governor and Mayor will be appropriately decorated.

The Ninth Regiment Band, under the direction of Barrington Sargent, will enliven the occasion before the start of the game and between innings. The "Royal Rooters," who will be out in force, will also have a band. Hoch Hoch Bandis will toss out in the march to the flag pole. The program of the Ninth Regiment Band follows:

March, "Will Repeat".....Sargent
(Dedicated to Red Sox.)

THE SUNNY SOUTH.

It is always warm and sunny
In the South,
But it always strikes me funny,
In the South.
For it never rains or thunders
And the Cobbs are full of blunders
And the bushers play like wonders
In the South.

The baseball expert who picks a winner in Spring is, in a way, similar to the gent who attempts to pick the elusive pea. In another way he isn't. Even if the expert loses he gets pay for it.

Christie Mathewson's creed—What doth it profit a man to beat a lot of bushers in the South and suffer the loss of his arm?

Joe Stecher is not, as a great many persons believe, the inventor of the scissors hold. Frank Gotch has been using it for years to clip coupons.

Zeb Terry, we read, is a marvelous fielder, but, the scribe naively remarks: "He can't hit like Hans Wagner." How strange!

Clarence Rowland has to release a lot of his recruits and doesn't want to do it. On the other hand, Joe Tinker wants to release a lot of his veterans and can't.

There is nothing to prevent Tommy Burns from coming back. Nothing but Tommy Burns.

The Cubs, according to a Southern expert, look better than the Reds. It might also be said, without fear of successful contradiction, that Mary Pickford looks better than Lydia Pinkham.

Not that we are in the habit of commenting on current events, but it strikes us that Caruso's press agent is working in our midst.

POLITICAL STUFF.

The Short and Ugly Word has gone its way
Thought spoken once with loud and heated breath,
The Nature Faker, too, has had its day,
The Mollycoddle maidens, cold in death.

The Byzantine Bazinkus made a bit
If do not think Bazinkus was the name
And yet it never stirred my soul a bit—
A Custard Pudding would have served the same.

But now T. R. arises in his might
And smites his formen hip and thigh and root,
And hands them hefty wallops, left and right,
And says: "Fish! Tush! You are a Pussyfoot!"
That for you!

MISS DORFNER WILL COMPETE FOR TITLE

Drying Out Pins for Big Lynn Tournament

Entries for the National Duck and Candle Pin Congress bowling tournament to be held at the Casino alleys, Lynn, from April 17 to 29, close with Secretary C. A. Barrett tomorrow evening. Entries mailed up to midnight April 12 will be accepted.

All the star rollers of New England will compete during the two weeks of pin hitting and record scores are bound to be the rule, as the alleys have been rebuilt and the pins have been drying for the past three weeks.

Every bowler knows what that means; knows that the pins will scatter like dry chips when the ball hits them at the right angle. There are events for five-men teams, three-men teams, two-men teams and individuals.

The entry fee is $1 in each event. All the bowlers are interested, so they realize that a beginner is very likely to take first prize, owing to the uncertainty of bowling. Doubles or Wahoo is on apt to pop a high night on the alleys, while some unknown roller may step up to the foul line and make the best score of them all.

The prizes this year are most attractive and the alleys will get their money's worth. The entries have been slow in coming in, but already enough have sent in their filled out blanks and money to assure one of the finest tourneys on the alleys that the young city ever saw.

DAD SOME BANKER, BUT SON COLLECTS

By International News Service.

Chicago, April 11.—Stanwood Godfrey Baumgartner and his father, Conrad S. Baumgartner, have settled their differences out of court. This was indicated when an order was issued in Municipal Judge Stelk's court whereby the son was allowed $1,000 in settlement of his claim against his father for $2,200. Young Baumgartner is a pitcher for the Philadelphia Nationals. He alleged that his father refused to return $2,200 which was alleged to have been placed in his care for safe-keeping.

RING RESULTS

Philadelphia, April 11.—Sammy Robbins defeated Jimmy Duffy of New York in a four-round bout at the Olympia A. A.

Manchester, N. H., April 11.—Al Nelson of this city outscored Young Jasper of Boston by a wide margin in their ten-round bout. It was one-sided throughout.

New Bedford, April 11.—Lee Anderson of Derby, N. H., stopped Andrew Johnson of New York, though outweighed, in the fifth rounds, in the tenth round. Joe Wilson of New York won from Jimmy Clancy of Providence in the third round.

New York, April 11.—Carey Phelan outpointed Tommy Houck at the Olympic A. C. and Frankie Cotter defeated Eddie Nugent in the semi-final.

Meriden, Ct., April 11.—Young Fulton of New York won from Dave Mosier in nine rounds at the Lenox A. C. Mosier's claim of foul was disallowed.

Woonsocket, R. I., April 11.—Frankie Fleming, the Canadian featherweight, scored a knockout over Boyle of Lowell in the ninth round at the Cadeum. Fleming looms up as a coming star.

Vollmer made the distance in 2:32 2-5, which records the old record by 2 2-5 seconds and two-fifths seconds for the 220-yard tank, made by himself last February. Mathewson finished second in 2:36 2-5, while Ted Evans and Joseph P. Wheatley, both teammates of the victor, landed in third and fourth places, respectively.

Their Married Life

Helen Nerves Laura for Further Action in an Effort to Win Back Her Husband

[illegible] HELEN hardly knew how she got Laura home that afternoon.

After Laura had refused to join her husband and the party at the next table, Helen had managed to keep her from showing her feelings until they could leave.

"You must keep your pride," she told Laura, whimpering as carefully as she could under cover of the tea-cups. "Do you want him to think that you are jealous?"

"I am jealous," said Laura, her face beginning to soften.

"Well, for heaven's sake, tell him if you had some pride and so as I left you. If you feel the same, Laura, I am done with you!"

Helen's words, though almost harsh, had the proper effect on Laura, and she straightened up under a stiff show of pride that managed to do enough laughing for two, as she put it, and when she saw that the party at the next table made no move to go she determined to take the initiative herself.

"We'll go first," she suggested to Laura.

"Oh, no, Helen, let's wait."

"Do as I tell you!" said the brisker to gentle Helen, almost amazed at her own temerity.

Laura meekly gathered up her scarf and prepared to put on her gloves.

"Speak to your husband as you go by the table," Helen ordered, and Laura, with an inward shiver, was startled into sudden action by Helen, who rose and passed close to the unsuspecting table as she spoke.

She was afraid that Laura would not have enough pride to do as she commanded, but Laura turned from her friend and bowed as gay remark over her shoulder as they passed. Here, her long meat experience told her, was where Helen might use her knowledge of men well for herself. Laura, summoning her pride, had managed to come off with honors.

"You managed that splendidly," said Helen as she sank into a chair and fanned herself as Mr. Richards coming after them.

"Laura, your husband is coming after you. Be careful now, and let him think you care, and spend the good years we have managed so far."

"What shall I say?"

THE CRUCIAL MOMENT

"Act as if nothing had ever happened; well stop at the magazine stand and buy a magazine."

Mr. Richards caught up to them just as Helen was handing the money over for the magazine, and noting as though nothing had happened to their husband's absence, said lightly for neutral topics of conversation.

"I want to see the baseball game, you know, Dick," said Helen, "and I don't care about anything else you want to hear about baseball."

Helen was successful in her first move, for the turning of interest and engrossed Mr. Richards.

"Why, Laura, you look pale," said Helen. "What are you going to do, Dick? You don't mind if I call you Dick, do you?" she added, as though she had always had the right to call her husband by his first name. She called him Dick to distinguish him from other people she knew.

"I wanted to see you much better than you deserve," said Laura.

"Yesterday what was yesterday? Was I not the one to suffer for that I had a headache but that was nothing."

Again that puzzled look of admiration in Mr. Richards's eyes.

"How about going to the theater tonight, Laura, but well enough? You look fine this afternoon, Laura."

Laura was all ready to go, for a moment. Her eyes warmed, and she smiled instantly. Helen could see the transformation all over her, and was afraid of the consequences. She saw that Mr. Richards, after her first look of recognition, had been too engrossed with Laura to look in any other direction, and so it was easy enough to slip her hand over Laura's and look at her warningly. She even ventured a shake of the head instantly Laura recognized. The smile faded from her face, leaving it light and harsh as it had been before.

"Not tonight, Dick. I have the Cartwright reception, and I have promised to go to the opera afterward, too; you know the Armstrongs are taking me with them. I believe Red chambers is going, too."

This last was a stroke of brilliancy on Laura's part. Red Chambers was a good looking unattached bachelor, not eager to be caught, who had been rather taken with the exotic Mrs. Richards when she had first been introduced into society. Laura had been indifferent and for a long time her husband had teased her lightly about her conquest, for Mr. Chambers had hung about on all occasions.

"Going back now," queried Laura, as waiting for him to proceed. "Well I suppose you won't be home to dinner. I shall have something upstairs and never slowly."

"I'll be home to dinner tonight," said Mr. Richards firmly.

Again that ecstatic look on Laura's face, but Helen's warning look prevented her from saying anything.

MR. RICHARDS IS ANXIOUS

"All right, I'll leave word. Good-by."

"You'll have dinner with me?"

"Certainly, if you are going to be home."

"Don't tell me that you aren't a bit diplomat," said Helen admiringly as they walked off.

"Now Helen, what can you think it is?"

"Color yourself now, you haven't time to dress before you buy any more of anyone, for if you buy one dress carefully you will manage."

Laura was almost hysterical, the change in feeling was almost too much for her, and Helen was afraid that she would veer the other way so that it might result in a bad reaction.

"Laura, you must be very careful. Don't imagine that the battle is won and act as though you had entirely forgiven him. Now you have only too glad to get him back and will quibble."

"What shall I do? Tell me, Helen, and I'll do just as you say. If I should spoil all right I can never repay you for what you have done."

"Treat him courteously, but not vaguely if possible ask a couple of other people for dinner."

"I know what you mean. But do you think it will. It is all fast as I understand it in love."

"Do you after all, and that is your last card, only be careful to play it the right time, so that you play."

(Another instalment of this very human series will appear here soon.)

Anecdotes of the Famous

The kindness of Napoleon's whole geniality is well known, tales of a humorous character that abounded while she was traveling in Egypt. She received a most cordial reception from the people, and in their enthusiasm some Egyptian soldiers took the horses out of her carriage and drew it themselves through the streets of Cairo. Later on the Duchess thanked the young officer who commanded them for their kindness.

"I should think I must have been very heavy for them to carry," she said.

The officer was extremely thankful, talking to a British royal personage, and for a moment thought he could not find words to reply.

"Oh, dear, no," he stammered at length nervously, "you were not heavier than the men they are accustomed to carry."

The Duchess laughed afterward and the gun in question weighed half a ton.

Dr. Randall Davidson, the Archbishop of Canterbury, has always taken a very great interest in educational matters, and once, during his curate days, he was rather taken aback by an unconsciously humorous answer he received from a little girl at a Sunday school.

Dr. Davidson had delivered to the class a very eloquent description of the life story of Solomon, and he was delighted to see by the face of his pupils that they were evidently fully conscious of the importance of the subject.

"Now," said Dr. Davidson, after he had concluded his little lecture, "can any of you tell me something about King Solomon?"

But apparently no one could.

"Come now," went on the doctor, "can anyone tell me what was the difference between Solomon and Squash?"

Instantly a little girl's hand shot up.

"Well?" inquired Dr. Davidson, encouragingly.

"Please, sir," answered the small maiden triumphantly, "Solomon was wise."

Some years ago, at a sale of racing yearlings, the Duke of Portland and another peer bid together for a fine animal, and the contest between them was very keen. At length over $2,500 was bid for the horse.

"If we go on at this rate," said the other peer, "we shall be paying far more than the creature is worth. Suppose we buy it between us?"

The Duke of Portland agreed, and later on they had a discussion as to what the horse should be called.

"Well," said his Grace, "as we are going to share it, why not call it Go-Less?"

A Song of Songs

By NELL BRINKLEY

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.

It's Called: "ARE YOU HALF THE MAN YOUR MOTHER THOUGHT YOU'D BE?"

"HAVE you ever stopped to think of how you sat at mother's knee

While she planned your future with you, pictured what a man you'd be?

And you threw your arms around her, promised all you'd do some day—

The happiness you'd bring to her when she was old and gray?

CHORUS.

Have you kept your promise to her
That you made while on her knee?
Can you truly say
You're half the man today
That she always thought you'd be?
Is she proud to be your Mother—
Is it joy or sorrow in her eyes you see?
Are you all she planned and prayed for—
All she raked and scrap'd and saved for?
Are You Half the Man Your Mother Thought You'd Be?

AFTER hearing this chorus sung straight at me—and all the silent crew of men "shuffle-shoon" and Youth-wealthy, women, boys and girls, eager and careless, who filled a big orchestra along with small me, after "getting" every clear meaningful word right in the heart, there didn't seem much to tell you about this heart-stirring song when once I had quoted the chorus to you.

Once upon a time they didn't sing things like that. People sneaked about with that prodding, idolatrous thought tucked away in their heads and hearts, but they builded song castles to the girls they loved and left their mothers out. Or if they feebly but bravely sang of her at all, the chant was wrapped about in such flowery and melancholy speech that the man who heard it did not squirm and wish hard that he might see that little mother now!

But, ah—hear this plain and homely speech, words that we know and believe, the familiar tongue that calls up thoughts. A chorus for women and girls as well as boys and men to sing to themselves with each word in it clear and luminous and round in their minds while their hearts remember and answer.

Maybe it's Summers and Winters too late for you to try again you think—but I have a little superstition, a little warm-sure religion, that mothers see and know what we anguish for and win, wherever they are—no matter if no other folks can see or hear from beyond oblivion. Because, you see, Mothers are different. And when what you do seems long too late, and the snip of laurel wreath is bitter and worthless because she isn't there to see it.

But you who are lucky enough to have the living eyes and smile of your little Mother still with you, where you can touch her and hear the sound of her gown as she passes you by on her tireless feet, get this wee bit of a chorus of a new song on your lips for the good of your soul and sing it to yourself, man and girl. "Is it joy or sorrow in her eyes you see?" Bend your mind and your heart to putting the joy there and a smile—for every time you cloud and darken her mother-eyes you see the look and know the agony of regret countless times and for all time.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Tabloid Tales

What, Mother, is meant by that word Spiritualelle?

It is an adjective, Little One, used only for the daughters of wealth. When a daughter of poverty is eligible to the application of the word she is called "Skinny."

What, Mother, is flonglette?

It is that which pulls directly opposite from Common sense.

What, Mother Dear, is meant by that "nameless longing" story books tell about?

It means, Child, when a girl has it that she is longing for a lover, and when it is felt by a married woman it means a desire for a dollar that she can call her own.

What, Mother, is an Ideal Husband?

It is the man, my dear, who goes home safely to kiss his wife. The meal that is due about that time is, in the mind of an Ideal Husband, only a trivial incident.

TODAY'S AID TO BEAUTY

An especially fine shampoo for this weather, one that dissolves and entirely removes all dandruff, excess oil and dirt, can easily be made at trifling expense by simply dissolving a teaspoonful of cantrox in a cup of hot water. Pour slowly on scalp and massage briskly. This creates a soothing, cooling lather. Rinsing leaves the scalp spotlessly clean, soft and pliant, while the hair takes on the glossy richness of natural color, also a fluffiness which makes it seem much heavier than it is. After a cantrox shampoo arranging the hair is a pleasure.—Advertisement.

Girl Workers Who Win Out

The Clerk—and Her Reward for Being Courteous, Conscientious and Obliging

By JANE McLEAN

ANY day seems long to one who works and is not satisfied. Work brings contentment only to the girl who is satisfied and feels that she is actually living. After all it is rather a thankless task to measure off lengths of shimmering silk for girls who had no other thought save to wear its soft richness.

Gertrude lived in a boarding house. She had a lumpy cot bed, a dresser with a triangular piece of glass over its golden oak top, and the privilege of any hot water that she might find after the other boarders had finished. She washed her handkerchiefs in a wash bowl and covered the entire area of the dubious window with her clean white squares, her shirt waists were treated to a similar bath once a week, and all the satisfaction that she had from life was the assurance that she erned her own living. Oh, yes, she did that.

She lived, if living meant keeping the fires of life alive, no matter what fuel was used for the purpose. She longed to wear the softness of the silks that she measured off for other girls her own age. And daily she scanned her own features in the triangular piece of glass and found them passing fair. A soft chin, cleft with an impudent dimple, brown eyes and a mop of brown, wavy hair that always looked picturesque.

Once a fellow clerk had told her that she was handsome, and Gertrude had treasured the words and dreamed about the time when she might do anything else but be a clerk selling silks over a counter to unappreciative buyers.

It wasn't that she disliked work, but she did dislike working for people who were unconscious of the fact that she did her work conscientiously and well. Day after day she resolved that one encouraging word might change the entire current of life for her, but that kind word never came, and she went on working for seven dollars a week with no chance for anything different.

She grew to hate the formula that brought about the usual sale, and that was because she had no reason to know that she was an exceptional clerk, obliging, deferential and of real value to the concern that employed her.

One day the sun rose just as it did on any other day, and Gertrude went to business unaware that things were about to be different. On the way to work she saw a blouse—just a simple, inexpensive blouse, but Gertrude suddenly wanted it with her whole heart.

She realized that she would do anything in the world to be able to buy it. Everything was the same down at the store, but she stifled the sigh that rose to her lips at the prospect of the long day, and went to work with a will.

And then, out of a clear sky, as it always does come, came her chance. Willing and deft, with her ready smile and her slim busy fingers, she made a tremendous sale. She measured off yard after yard of expensive silk, and patiently and diffidently offered her advice. The customer asked for her name and Gertrude gave it wonderingly. And then later in the day the manager came down the aisle and asked for Miss Gertrude Brown. Gertrude flushed to the tips of her ears, but she stepped forward timidly, fearful that she might have to pay a forfeit.

"Your efforts have been noticed, Miss Brown," said the man smilingly, "and today a customer that we value spoke of your efficiency. Hereafter you will report in the suit department, and your salary will be $12 to start. We need willing girls like you in our business." And he left Gertrude, flushed and ecstatic, the consciousness that she might buy that blouse blotting out even the greater thought that she had actually made good.

His Grace the Duke of Manchester has written an article right from the inside on how society is bored to death by endless dances, dinners, and teas. If you ever envy the idle rich you will be immensely entertained by his article which appears exclusively in next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

YOU ARE VERY YOUNG

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of fifteen and am deeply in love with a man about twenty-five. He is very well known in the city and all the girls are in love with him, but he does not look at them. I meet him on the street about once a week. For the last five or six weeks I have said "Hello." The last time I met him I did not speak to him, thinking that he must know me by now and would speak first. He looked at me but did not speak nor even smile. All my girl friends tell me that I am crazy to speak to him when I never was introduced to him. I do not know of anyone who would introduce him to me, but I would give anything to know him. Please advise me what to do. Should I speak to him? LOVE-SICK.

YOU are too young to write such a letter as this. No doubt the man considers you a child, and he is perfectly right. The best advice for love-sick (for so you sign yourself) girls in their teens is to "Wait! Wait! Wait!"

MAKE THE BEST OF IT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of eighteen and have been married for four years. Being but a child I could not see the faults of my husband. But he is not good to me, he gives me but a very little money and get drunk and comes home and beats me, sometimes leaving me black and blue for days. Should I leave him and seek a divorce and marry the man I have since learned to love? I hope you will answer this very soon as this may be the turning point in my life. "BRIGHT EYES."

IN giving your affections to another man, you have wronged your husband more than he has wronged you. Your first and greatest mistake was in marrying at the age of fourteen. That can never be justified. Having married a man, however, it is your duty and his duty above everything else, to fit yourselves into each other's lives and make your marriage a success.

ASK HIM TO CALL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of twenty. I have never kept company with a man. Lately I met one I like very much. He asked me to go out with him, but I am bashful, so I refused.

Now I am sorry. I see him quite often but he never speaks or pays any attention to me. Perhaps he thinks I do not care for him. How could I let him see I do? E. S.

WHY not invite him to call at your home? That would at least show him you do not dislike him.

Greater Boston should be the banner city for Better Babies in the United States.

The baby death rate should be lower than anywhere else in the country.

Parents should be more intelligent in bringing up their babies than in other cities.

Why?

The clear pure air of New England, mixed with ocean breezes, is the heritage of every child that is given a fair chance to breathe it.

Death seldom takes the baby unless there is neglect, poverty and ignorance. Boston is today prosperous, parents are studying how to bring up their babies, and few are found to neglect their smallest children.

Boston is supplied with leading physicians and with hospitals, where the health of infants is made a specialty.

All kinds of information may be had about babies for the asking.

The AMERICAN'S Best Babies contest is already demonstrating the quality of Boston babies. Measurements, pictures and descriptions show how much care and pride are going into the rearing of hundreds of better babies.

They are full size for their age; they have strength and power of resistance, their flesh appears firm, their color good and their intelligence above the average.

The "Best Baby" editor is ambitious to show to the judges, who will decide on the best fifty-one babies of Greater Boston, at least one thousand babies, all so fine, healthy and beautiful that the wise physicians will be completely puzzled as to which should have medals.

Will the mothers of Greater Boston help in this search for perfect babyhood? To be the grand success which it should be the contest books should register every healthy, strong, intelligent baby within miles of the State House.

There are hundreds and there are thousands that have not yet come in. Some parents have not the energy, or are too busy to take simple steps to enter their babies in the contest.

One half hour to measure the baby's head, chest abdomen; another half hour to write his characteristics and history, and ten minutes to fill out the blank and mail it with a picture, if there is one; is that too much time to give to your baby, whom you pretend to think so much of?

Is he or she not worth an hour and ten minutes of your time? Are you spoiling your little boy or girl fairly by not giving him an opportunity to win the silver cup, a gold medal or a silver and bronze medal?

YOU SHOULD ACT NOW.

Do it today or tomorrow morning the first thing after baby has had its bath. Put the tape measure about its head and then write down on a blank, cut from the AMERICAN, the number of inches; do the same for the chest and for the abdomen.

Write a few things about the baby's teeth, if he has any, tell whether he walks, what he eats, whether he sleeps in the fresh air, how much he cries, when he is sick; what he says or tries to say, what tricks he knows, etc.

With his picture, if he has one, put measurements in an envelope and mail them to the "Best Baby" editor, Boston AMERICAN, No. 30 Summer street.

Surely this is not difficult, and there is no mother but could find the time if she really takes pride in her baby.

And, mothers, do not hold back because you think your baby has no chance as it has some small defect. No one knows how the judges will make up their minds. They may discover virtues in your baby which some finer appearing baby has not got.

BUST FINEST BABY.

You may be surprised to find your baby wearing a medal around its small neck telling everyone he has been judged excellent by six authorities.

There are yet towns among the forty about Boston eligible for the contest from which none or few babies have registered.

Is it possible the city of Waltham is unable to produce a perfect baby, or rather a whole fifty perfect babies? Why should not Waltham bring forth the best baby in Greater Boston?

Dover, Newton, Norwood and Weston, have you not read about the beautiful solid silver cup for the finest baby in Greater Boston?

All that the mothers and fathers of these towns have to do is to produce that perfect baby in order to carry away the trophy.

One or two babies from each town is not enough; every baby is needed—if he or she is between the ages of six and twenty-four months it may enter and be judged. If the first prize is not won there are fifty others, all splendid tokens of excellent babyhood.

The Yellow Peril Cannot Be Avoided by Simply Shutting Our Eyes to It

WE Americans are a gullible people.

Unluckily for us, we are opposed by a people who are not a bit gullible.

In the main, we Americans, so far as international relations go, are an honorable and moral people.

Unluckily for us, we are opposed by a people who cannot even think in terms of morality and honor, as we understand those terms.

The people who are opposed to us and who mean to seize the hegemony of Asia and the hegemony of the Pacific Ocean are the Japanese.

The majority of Americans do not believe this. Which proves that the Japanese are far more shrewd than we Americans.

For there is not a grown man in Japan, from the Mikado to the lowest coolie, who does not know that this is Japan's purpose and who does not believe that Japan will accomplish this purpose.

All Asiatics are unmoral, and many Asiatics are shrewd.

The Japanese are both absolutely unmoral and extraordinarily shrewd.

The only question which ever occurs to the Japanese mind, when considering any action, is the question as to whether or not that action is expedient.

The Japanese mind is wholly unable to understand, for instance, the indignation felt by Americans against the wrongs and indignities put upon Belgium by the Germans and upon Greece by the allies.

That anybody should reprobate any military movement which was to the advantage of the power making the movement, upon grounds of international morality, is simply incomprehensible to the Japanese intellect.

The Japanese would politely hide his incredulity behind a smile, for he simply would not believe that any sane human being was really in earnest in objecting to winning success in war because the means used were unmoral or violative of a weaker people's rights.

To the Japanese mind, the fact that the wronged people were weak would simply show that the stronger people used excellent judgment in selecting a victim.

Now, when to this Asiatic unmorality you add a remarkable quickness of intelligence, a passionate race loyalty, a fierce resentment of the white man's assumption of superiority, an inherited love of and respect for war as the only really manly occupation, and a national ambition to weld the eight hundred millions of Asia into a compact empire that would give law to the world and establish with its armies and battle-fleets the supremacy of the yellow peoples over the white peoples, you will have something like a just conception of Japan's purposes and ambitions and something like a right conception of her stealthy policies and her menacing, potential strength and resources.

The butt of fools' clumsy wit and the joke of those who are blind and deaf to its proportions and to its threat, the Yellow Peril is, nevertheless, THE ONE VAST MENACE WHICH THE FUTURE HOLDS FOR US.

For if human calculation can say of anything in the future that it is certain, then it is certain that the whole weight and avalanche, as it were, of Asia's onset upon the white race, under the leadership of Japan, will fall upon ourselves.

Neither is this idle declamation nor any mere cry of "Wolf." Countrymen, these words are the words of soberness and truth. Many of you will live to see, in bitter humiliation, these words of warning justified by time and shamefully proven in dreadful defeat and disaster unless we, as a people, do awake to the danger to come and frustrate it by ample preparation on land and sea to beat down the sinister purposes of Japan before she shall have exalted her strength beyond the reach of our resistance.

If Japan is permitted to fasten her grip upon China and to exploit for her military uses all the resources and territory of that huge, populous and potentially hugely rich ancient empire, she can set upon us, in less than a decade, with such force and power that we may be unable to protect our people and our territory from the overwhelming onslaught.

Day by day we play Japan's game, while her statesmen sneer in their sleeves at our stupidity.

We work ourselves into furious rages of partisanship over the war in Europe, which is not aimed at us at all, and while we rage and clamor against allies or Teutons, JAPAN STEADILY PURSUES HER PREPARATIONS FOR WAR UPON US.

She has forcibly seized and exploited Korea; she has violated the neutrality and territory of China; she controls and means to annex all Manchuria; she has intimidated China and has on foot a revolution which she means to make an excuse for seizing the government and revenues of China; she has seized and is fortifying strategic islands as a base of future operations against the Philippines and Hawaii; she has equipped and maintains a much larger standing army than Germany ever thought of maintaining in peace times, and the whole tone of her statesmen and her press daily becomes more insolent and more truculent toward Americans and all things American.

And in the meantime we stand idle, like so many blind fools, and do not make the slightest move to prepare for defence against the powerful and dangerous assault which is as certain to come as day is to follow night.

It does seem as though the common sense and the foresight which marked our fathers have deserted us in these perilous times.

The success of Japan's plans depends upon her preparedness for war and our unpreparedness for war. Of European interference she is not afraid, calculating that the European powers will be too exhausted to offer war in defence of China, and knowing well that Russia is always ready to strike a bargain for a share in the partition of Asia.

If the United States can be cajoled into remaining in a fool's paradise of unpreparedness, Japan can seize China and declare her hegemony of the Pacific with every reason to believe that she can make good her arrógance and ambitions.

For that reason nothing is left undone to soothe suspicion in the United States.

Old ladies in trousers, like Jordan, Shaler and Gulick, are flattered by attentions and mock deference until they swallow Japanese explanations as easily and greedily as a chick robin gulps down a fat worm.

A paid press bureau is maintained in New York to hand to American newspapers Japanese excuses, denials, evasions and protestations of undying gratitude and friendship toward America.

The gullibility with which many newspapers lend themselves to this Japanese propaganda is nowhere the cause of so much derisive and contemptuous laughter as among the very Japanese agents paid to hoodwink and make fools of ill-informed American editors.

But while they deserve Japanese secret ridicule and contempt, it is painful to see our people also misled by such raw artifices, to see them blinded to their own grave and imminent danger by tricks of these yellow press agents that ought not to deceive the intelligence of schoolboys.

We sometimes wonder if it is possible to awake our people from this dream of Japanese innocence and benevolence, to make them even begin to suspect the sinister purposes and the tremendous preparation of this unscrupulous, faithless, unmoral and hugely dangerous Asiatic power.

Will evidence have any effect, we wonder. For instance, such JAPANESE testimony as this, taken from a Tokio news letter printed in full in the New York Herald of March 15:

"At a recent dinner of the Japan Trade Association Mr. Ichiro Tokutomi, editor of the Kokumin, declared that there prevails an opinion among a section of statesmen and politicians that the Anglo-Japanese alliance has become superannuated and should be reframed to meet the changed situation of Japan—the growth or exaltation of her position and influence in Far Eastern affairs. He insisted that this view was shared by several members of the Cabinet and Navy Council."

In this same news letter from which we have quoted occur these paragraphs:

"The case of those Japanese who are demanding a revision of the alliance with Great Britain is summarized by the Nichi Nichi.

"It declares that in Canada, Australia and other British colonies Japanese are refused treatment on an equal footing; that the British residents in China, official and otherwise, are bent on curbing Japan's interests in that country; that Japan's position in China is of vital importance to Japan, but that its predominance is not recognized, and that, moreover, in case of misunderstandings with the United States over Chinese questions, the British government is known to be bent on avoiding the responsibility of rendering assistance to this country.

"The newspaper further alleges that Britain is restricting Japan's free action in India. Under these circumstances the journal deems it natural that there should be a feeling of dissatisfaction concerning the alliance as it now exists."

You will observe that the principal reason these Japanese organs give for public impatience with the Anglo-Japanese alliance is that England cannot be depended upon to uphold Japan's designs upon China OR TO AID JAPAN IN A COMING WAR WITH THE UNITED STATES.

You should bear in mind, too, that these Japanese editors and newspapers would not make these statements without the certainty that they were agreeable to the people and government of Japan.

An importance attaches to these newspaper utterances which does not attach to the foreign political discussions of American newspapers, consisting, as they mostly do, merely of individual editorial opinion—and frequently of obviously futile opinion, at that.

Let us now quote to you American opinions that are not ignorant or futile—opinions resulting from residence in Japan and China and personal acquaintance with conditions and public opinion in those countries. An opinion worth something is contained in the following news dispatch:

"San Francisco, April 3.—That Japan is colonizing and intends to keep the South Sea Islands captured from the Germans was the statement made by Professor Dr. Frederick Starr, University of Chicago, who has arrived from the Orient after six months' research work in Japan and Korea. He said:

"'Japan has no intention of withdrawing from the Ladrone or Marshall Islands, which she has taken from Germany, and which lie about midway between the Philippines and Hawaii. She has already undertaken expansive postal, telegraph and cable schemes. She is sending many settlers to them.

"'Since the war began in Europe more than 1,000 new millionaires have been made in Japan. Extravagant ideas have taken possession of the Japanese nation, and a wave of speculation is sweeping over the country.'

"Dr. Starr said that Japan's trade with India had increased enormously since the war, and that in this development lay the possibility of future commercial competition with Great Britain.

"He added that the Japanese treated him with the utmost friendliness and that they looked upon the United States as a friend too much occupied in money-getting to undertake wars or take any serious part in world movements."

The final paragraph is an absolutely correct statement of the average Japanese's contemptuous estimate of us as a nation. It is this contempt, bred by our own incredible folly in not arming, that makes war with Japan a certainty.

The islands Japan is thus preparing she can be preparing for only one possible purpose—and that is to use them as naval bases when the time comes to seize the Philippines and Hawaii, and from these bases descend upon the United States.

As long as the Japanese mind looks upon international robbery as the highest and most glorious exercise of a nation's vigor and arms, SO LONG WILL OUR RICHES AND WEAKNESS TEMPT JAPAN'S CUPIDITY AND SELF-CONCEIT—THE TWO POWERFUL MAINSPRINGS OF ALL JAPANESE ACTION.

But perhaps you think that, as Japan has never actually menaced us with war, she is not soon likely to do so.

The answer is that Japan has twice within a very few years past been on the point of declaring war upon the United States, and did not do so only because the President of the United States yielded to her threats and demands.

Both President Roosevelt and President Wilson ate humble-pie from the armed hand of Japan because our military and naval preparation was so weak compared to Japan's that they HAD TO EAT HUMBLE-PIE.

A statement of a bit of secret political history, made by Congressman Austin in his address to the Republican Club in New York city on April 1, may open some of your eyes as to how Mr. Taft regarded Japan's attitude and our chances in a war with her while he was President. We quote from the news report:

"Congressman Austin said that William H. Taft, when President, asked him to vote to have the Panama Pacific Exposition held in San Francisco. Mr. Austin said he and his constituents wanted it at New Orleans. President Taft explained, he said, that it should be held at San Francisco in order that San Francisco and California would be obliged to treat the Japanese land and immigration questions carefully until the fair was over. Then, President Taft said, the Panama Canal would be open, and the United States navy would be in a position to protect the country.

"'In other words, you want me to vote to keep the country out of war?' Congressman Austin said he asked.

"'That is about it,' President Taft replied, according to Congressman Austin."

Now, do you think that Japanese feeling is less hostile toward us at this time than it was in the administrations of Roosevelt and Taft and in the first year of Wilson's term?

Then read what Representative Austin had to say upon this point in the course of the same public address:

"When I was in Japan I could feel in the atmosphere what every intelligent visitor there must feel—that the Japanese do not like us. Among the scores of Americans I met in Japan every one of them, with a single exception, told me that the Japanese were unfriendly. Why? We are their best customers. Without their trade with us the country would soon be in financial distress.

"The chief reason is that they are getting ready to despoil China, and they know that the sentiment of this country is unanimous against it. They know, too, that there are two great countries in this world which are just as helpless as children—China and the United States. We need to get over our helpless condition. We need a strong army and navy—not to get ready for war, but to take out insurance.

"We will continue to be in great danger as long as we are weak, but we will be able to avoid trouble if we are strong. Two of the causes of friction between the two countries, as is well known, are the immigration and the land questions. The third, which is now developing, is the Japanese intention to control China."

We could multiply testimony as to Japan's plans, ambitions and preparations—testimony from American, British, Chinese and Japanese sources—until a hundred pages of this size would not hold the mass of evidence. But we fear that it would be of little use. We fear that we waste words and space in saying what has been said, in presenting the evidence we have presented.

But a deep sense of duty to the country and a profound and painful consciousness of the danger ahead forbid us to keep silent. We feel that every obligation which can impel a loyal American newspaper urges and demands that we speak.

And if, happily, we can arouse your interest and you demand of us what is to be done, we reply that there is just one single, imperative, absolutely necessary thing to be done, and that is to PREPARE SUCH A NAVY AND SUCH A CITIZEN ARMY that Japan will cease to dream her dream of war and conquest.

In arms and in preparedness, citizens, lies alone your safety against the Yellow Peril!
